ART GOEBEL BREAKS FLIGHT RECORD SET BY MACREADY-KELLY

Pilot And Passenger
Cross Continent In
19 Hours

CURTIS FIELD, N. Y., Aug. 20.—Art Goebel, winner of the Dole flight to Hawaii, arrived here this morning, establishing a new record for a non-stop flight across the continent.

Goebel left Los Angeles at 12:06 p. m., yesterday (Pacific Standard Time) and arrived here at 11:08 a. m. (Eastern Daylight Time), making the long journey in eighteen hours and fifty-eight minutes.

Goebel was accompanied by Harry Tucker, Santa Monica sportsman, in the plane "Yankee Doodle," a Lockheed Vega with a Pratt Whitney motor capable of 175 miles an hour.

The previous record of twenty-six hours and fifty minutes was held by Lieuts. MacReady and Kelly, army flyers.

The flight is the "Yankee Doodle's" second attempt to take the trans-continental record. Several months ago the plane, piloted by Lee Shoenhar, flew from San Diego, being stopped at Harrisburg, Pa., by fog after being in the air for 15½ hours.

The plane carried two tons of gas and oil. Frank Titchener, publisher of the "Aero Digest" who acted as official timer was the first to greet the flyers when they stepped from the plane. He gave the official time of the flight as eighteen hours and fifty-eight minutes. He gave the official time of arrival as 11:08 a. m. but said he had accepted Tucker's statement that the wheels of the plane had not left the ground at Los Angeles until 12:10 p. m. Pacific time, although reports from Los Angeles gave the time of the take-off as 12:06.

Painted on the white plane were its name "Yankee Doodle" and a red, white and blue arrow, running the length of the fuselage, the names of Goebel and Tucker and the plane's race number, forty-four, the trans-continental air derby, scheduled to start from Roosevelt Field, September 12.

Goebel said the record flight from Los Angeles, was made in preparation for the forthcoming derby, and that he will be accompanied by Tucker, both of whom are reluctant to make one of the places he had discovered a route which he expected would aid him in the coming race and which he did not wish to outline to his competitors. He did say he passed over Albuquerque, N. M., Wichita, Kan., St. Louis and Columbus, O.

Goebel and Tucker both said that although they had provisions on board, they had not eaten since leaving Los Angeles, and their first concern was to go to a local hotel for luncheon.

From there they went to the Ambassador Hotel, in Manhattan where they will stay while preparing for the cross-country flight.

The flight was made at a fairly high altitude, crossing mountains at 10,000 feet and averaging 150 miles an hour. Ninety gallons of fuel remained in the tank at the end of the trip.

REPORT 26,000
SLAIN IN YEAR

MOSCOW, Aug. 20.—Twenty-six thousand Chinese communists have been executed by the Nationalists in the past year, according to a report from the Chinese Federation of Labor received today by the Red Internationale of Trade Unions. The Chinese laborites asked for assistance in the fight against the Kuomintang.

The report declared that "a total of 26,000 Chinese workers and civilian peasants slaughtered during the period covered by the report without cause other than that they passively resisted the treacheries of the Chinese generals."

About 36,000 of those beheaded were trade union members. Almost half of the total membership of the Chinese communist party were killed in what is described as a "barbaric hunt for red heads." The federation warned against an impending rapprochement of the new Nationalist government and the Imperialist United States. It declared that "political and commercial penetration by the United States will eventually turn China into a vassal colony of the most powerful nation in the world today—America."

IT'S BALONEY!

CINCINNATI, O., Aug. 20.—"It's the baloney!" When the radio audience of WLW heard this succinct expression boom out of their loudspeakers Saturday night, just after the acceptance speech of Senator Charles Curtis had been broadcast, they gasped in astonishment and amazement. William Steeg was still perspiring today as he explained that the ambiguous words meant the title of an organ solo to follow from the station's studio, and had no connection with the vice presidential nominee's speech at Topeka.

Indignant Republicans and gleeful Democrats deluged newspaper offices with telephone calls, but studio officials declared the program had been arranged weeks in advance of the booking of the acceptance address and that the title of the first number could not have been designed to reflect on the Curtis speech.

SENATOR CURTIS ON WAY TO WASHINGTON AFTER ACCEPTANCE

First Address Is Scheduled Thursday In Providence

TOPEKA, Kan., Aug. 20.—Senator Charles Curtis was on his way to Washington today to open his campaign in the east. The Republican vice-presidential nominee who officially launched his campaign here Saturday with his acceptance speech left for the capital yesterday.

The senator who was born in North Topeka sixty-eight years ago, and who has been a resident here since, has asked the national committee to allow him to close his campaign where he opened it in his own home state. He expects to spend the latter part of his campaign tour in the middle west ending it at some part of Kansas and coming to Topeka to vote.

Among the congratulatory telegrams which the senator received following his acceptance speech was one from 3,000 Oklahoma Indians.

HOOVER SOUNDS NEW TOLERANCE APPEAL ON EASTWARD TRIP

Candidate Receives
Cheering News In
Southwest

ABOARD HOOVER TRAIN, EN ROUTE TO KANSAS CITY, Aug. 20.—Having sounded a new appeal for religious freedom in the heart of the Catholic southwest, Herbert Hoover crossed Kansas today en route to a series of farm conferences at his birthplace in West Branch, Iowa.

The Republican nominee will reach his birthplace early tomorrow morning, spend the day reviewing scenes familiar to his boyhood and deliver his first prepared farm speech at night. He will spend Wednesday and Thursday at Cedar Rapids, meeting hard-headed sons of toil and farm leaders from all sections of the middle west. He will resume his return trip to Washington late Thursday.

On his journey east through Arizona and New Mexico, Hoover received assurance from Republican leaders that he would carry both states. He spoke to a dozen crowds from the rear platform of his train, including one prepared speech at Albuquerque. It was in his speech with Catholics predominating in his audience, that Hoover sounded the religious liberty note.

"I like to remember in these days of the occasion of raising the American flag in this state by General Kearney, when he made a statement that is as true today as it was then," said Hoover. "He said:

"We come as friends to make this a part of representative government. In our government all men are equal. Every man has a right to serve God according to his conscience and his heart."

"This was a great charter for a new member of this union. It embodied the true spirit of American liberties."

In each state, the Republican leaders boarded his train. The woman leaders were entertained by Mrs. Hoover, who is rapidly sharing honors with her husband in a campaign. The men leaders went in conference with Hoover. This was the rule Saturday in Arizona. It was continued Sunday in New Mexico and again today in Kansas.

The schedule for Hoover's train carried him into Dodge City at 8:35 mountain time for a fifteen-minute stop. He spoke from the rear platform briefly to a crowd that gathered around the train. At 1:15 central time he was due in Hutchinson, Kan., for another brief halt. He was to reach Newton at 2:30; Emporia at 4:30; Topeka at 6:35 and Kansas City, Mo., at 8:40 tonight.

After a twenty-minute halt in Kansas City, Hoover will go on to his birthplace, reaching West Branch at 7:30 tomorrow morning. Despite the optimistic note sounded by Republican leaders in both Arizona and New Mexico, Hoover faces a stiff fight in both states. Newspapermen with Hoover in talks with those who crowd around the train, were told frequently that the Democrats expected to carry both states.

Senator Bronson Cutting, Republican of New Mexico told International News Service that Hoover would carry New Mexico only if the "religious issue is kept out of the campaign." He predicted a Hoover victory nationally and said many dry Democrats would vote for him in New Mexico but that the result would be close.

YEGGS ESCAPE WHEN BLAST THAT WRECKS SAFE ATTRACTS POLICE

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 20.—Two heavy blasts used in opening an auxiliary blast in the Union Clothing store, downtown department store, shortly before 7 o'clock this morning was believed by police to have kept the Yeggs from getting away with several thousand dollars in cash. The explosion caused several large front windows on the sixth floor of the store to be shattered and resulted in immediate police action.

A large sack stuffed with bills was found near a rear door on the first floor, believed to have been dropped by the thieves in making a hurried getaway as police threw a cordon about the building. Silver coins were found piled on the top of the blasted safe.

Noah Seamer, night watchman, was found chained to a sixth floor post, and handcuffed. He was unconscious when police arrived, but revived at a hospital where he told police he was making his 6 a. m. round when attacked. There was a partial check up at the store showed little if any money missing. The main safe of the store which contained a large sum of cash was not touched. Police said that plenty of clues were left by the Yeggs in their hurried getaway.

HASSELL AND CRAMER DISAPPEAR WHILE ON JUMP TO GREENLAND

Grave Anxiety Felt For Aviators Attempting Flight To Sweden; Radio And Flares Used In Search.

HALIFAX, Nova Scotia, Aug. 20.—Radiograms were flashed to ships at sea early today to keep a lookout for Bert Hassell and Parker Cramer, the two American aviators who became lost while attempting a flight from Canada to Greenland.

While the route taken by the airmen was far north of the regulation steamer lane small ships ply the waters where the men may have come down.

Favorable weather conditions were reported off the coast.

Belief is maintained here that the plane was forced to land by mechanical trouble, but there is no explanation of its silence; the last signal from it was received at 3 o'clock Sunday morning.

MOUNT EVANS, Greenland, Aug. 20.—Vigil was maintained here throughout the night for Bert Hassell and Parker Cramer, American aviators who hopped off at Rockford, Ill., to fly to Stockholm, Sweden.

Weather conditions off the coast, and Parker Cramer, who are almost a day overdue at Mount Evans, Greenland.

"No sign of Hassell yet. Long overdue."

That was the discouraging report, radioed from Mount Evans, in the hands of the chamber of commerce today. It was signed "Etes," for Elmer Etes, mechanic, who had gone on ahead to greet the plane in Greenland.

Many Rockford citizens remained all night to await word of the missing plane. The hope prevails that the flyers are safe, having lost communication with the outside world through the failure of their broadcasting set.

ROCKFORD, Ill., Aug. 20.—Gloom spread over Rockford today as hope waned for the missing Sweden-bound flyers, Bert Hassell and Parker Cramer.

STOCKHOLM FLYERS ATTEMPTED FLIGHT DEFYING EXPERTS

Dane Advised Wait Until Spring For Ocean
Hop.

COPENHAGEN, Aug. 20.—Bert Hassell and Parker Cramer started their flight to Greenland against the advice of Danish polar experts. It was revealed today by Helge Bangsted, who has just returned from Greenland, where he arranged for the landing and refueling of the Hassell airplane.

"I called Hassell that he had better wait until spring for the flight as landing and re-starting in Greenland would be very difficult. I am astonished that he started at this time of year."

Bangsted said that he had arranged three landing places at Stromfjord, 1700, 400 and 1500 feet long, but only fifty feet wide. They are surrounded with high rocks and sandbanks. A big risk would be encountered in taking off from these runways, Bangsted said, because they were not perfectly flat and could not be improved until spring.

"Hassell must have been fully aware," Bangsted said, "of these landing and re-starting difficulties, as a full report on the arrangements in Greenland had been sent to him at Rockford."

"Even if Hassell and Cramer succeed in reaching and leaving Greenland the flight to Reykjavik will also be extremely dangerous, as the airplane must fly at an altitude of 8,000 feet in order to clear the ice and fog."

FEW DEATHS MARK WEEK-END TRAFFIC

The toll of traffic fatalities over the week-end was much lower than usually noted, a state-wide check-up by International News Service disclosed today. Despite the clear, cool weather which prevailed generally throughout the state and filled the highways with pleasure bent motorists, auto accidents were few and the number of traffic deaths showed a marked decrease. Among those killed in traffic accidents over the forty-eight hour period were:

COLUMBUS: John D. Shannon, 89, Civil War veteran, killed while crossing street on way to church by taxi cab.

Anna Boyd, 50, dropped dead of heart trouble in street in front of her home.

BROADACRE, Jefferson County: Chester Wilby, 25, and Mary L. Swickart, 17, killed when their auto struck by a Pennsylvania train at grade crossing.

DAYTON: William L. Mott, 65, instantly killed when he walked into the path of a fast B. and O. freight train.

BUTLER OPPOSED TO HOOVER'S STAND ON DRY ENFORCEMENT

Columbia President Resumes Fight On Amendment

NEW YORK, Aug. 20.—Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia University and uncompromising foe of prohibition, today declared his vigorous disapproval of Herbert Hoover's stand for enforcement, reaffirming his belief that the eighteenth amendment must be wiped out "if the constitution itself is to be preserved and protected."

Continuing the fight he began more than a year ago to win the Republican party over to the repeal movement, a fight which he carried personally and lone-handed to the floor of the Kansas City convention after encountering overwhelming defeat in the platform committee Butler declared that, "anyone who is opposed to the repeal of the eighteenth amendment must be in the favor of the alternative, which is the continuance of the present reign of lawlessness, debauchery and government-made crime."

Coupled with his denunciation of Hoover's acceptance-speech utterances on the prohibition question Butler, in an open letter made public at his Southampton, L. I., summer home, also expressed his stand on disarmament and world peace.

Advocates Live Mind

A New York woman physician, Dr. Ruth F. Wadsworth, believes thoroughly in charm as a feminine asset. She declares, however, that mental aging is given far too little attention, and physical charm is wasted if not accompanied by an ageless mind. "Charm by Choice" is the name of a book she has written on the subject.

MYSTERY FIRE DESTROYS TWO BARN; INCENDIARY SOUGHT

Fire of mysterious origin destroyed two barns and a shed in New Jasper, southeast of Xenia, late Saturday night, threatened other nearby buildings and was only prevented from igniting residences in the neighborhood by the prompt action of volunteers, who formed a bucket brigade and kept the flames under control.

Barns belonging to Delbert Hite and Alva Stevens and a shed on the Stevens property were burned with small loss as the contents of the three buildings were no valuable, it is said. Stevens, the owner, lives near Jamestown. Hite property was unoccupied. Glen Hite lives in the property owned by Delbert Hite.

Neighbors volunteering as firemen to protect their own property, obtained water with which to fight the flames from wells on the Hite and Stevens properties.

The blaze, believed to have started in the Hite barn, was soon out of control. The three buildings which were destroyed were situated close together. The fire was discovered at 10 p. m.

It was not learned until after the barns had burned, that the interior of the kitchen at the Stevens residence had also been damaged by fire. Neighbors reported finding oil and pieces of oil-soaked rags on the floor, leading to a theory the flames may have been of incendiary origin.

MARSHALL - GOWDY FACTION HAS ORGANIZED G. O. P. COMMITTEE

All doubt that the Marshall-Gowdy faction regained control of Republican politics here at last Tuesday's primary election after a lapse of two years, was removed Saturday night when this group organized the newly-elected Greene County Republican Central Committee.

Thirteen committeemen affiliated with the Marshall-Gowdy group, who signed the petition calling for the meeting, attended the session held in the common Pias court room at the Court House.

The anti-Marshall faction, which was defeated in the fight for party control for the next two years, was not represented at the meeting.

The central committee was organized by the election of J. B. Conklin, Xenia Twp., as chairman, and W. E. Crites, Springfield Village, as secretary.

Guarding itself for the campaign preceding the November election, the committee also appointed an executive committee of thirty-six members, which will probably hold its own organization meeting until September, leaders announced.

For some time it had been considered possible that control of the central committee was divided, due to doubt as to the factional status of Harry A. Hagler, unopposed for election on the committee in New Jasper Twp. This doubt was removed when Hagler signed the call for the committee meeting and aligned himself with the Marshall-Gowdy faction by helping this group organize the committee.

The action of Hagler in casting his lot with the Marshall-Gowdy forces gives this group party control by a two-vote majority, the ratio being thirteen to eleven.

Following is the personnel of the newly-appointed executive committee: A. C. Mendenhall, Spring Valley Twp.; H. R. Armstrong, Bath Twp.; A. B. Lewis, Jefferson Twp.; F. C. Lackey, Ross Twp.; C. W. Moorman, Jamestown; F. A. Kendig, Osborn; C. F. Snedker, Fairfield; Walton Spahr, Sugarcreek Twp.; W. E. Crites, Spring Valley Village; S. W. Guyton, Xenia; H. A. Hagler, New Jasper Twp.; Phillip W. Thomas, Xenia; J. B. Conklin, Xenia Twp.; Archie Peterson, Miami Twp.; Lewis E. Stewart, Beaver Creek Twp.; Frank E.

Are You Ready

When your Children Cry for It

Baby has little upsets at times. All your care cannot prevent them. But you can be prepared. Then you can do what any experienced nurse would do—what most physicians would tell you to do—give a few drops of plain Castoria. No sooner done than Baby is soothed; relief is just a matter of moments. Yet you have eased your child without use of a single doubtful drug. Castoria is vegetable. So it's safe to use as often as an infant has any little pain you cannot pat away. And it's always ready for the crueler pangs of colic, or constipation, or diarrhea; effective, too, for older children. Twenty-five million bottles were bought last year.

MANY ATTEND CORNER-STONE LAYING EXERCISES AT HOME

The keynote of unity between all organizations interested in the welfare of the O. S. and S. O. Home, was expressed in the addresses delivered during the cornerstone-laying for the mens' hall, girls' cottage, and the new hospital at the Home, Sunday afternoon.

More than one hundred visitors, beside the local persons interested in the advancement of the Home, as shown in the erection of the three new buildings, attended the ceremonies.

The interest of Ohio Spanish-American War Veterans is clinched in the Home and members are pledged to give their thorough cooperation in the advancement of the institution, Judge Charles F. Shauter, Bucyrus, department commander, declared in his address, the first on the program.

His speech was followed by a brief talk by Dr. B. R. McClellan, Xenia, who expressed his pride in the progress of the Home and the interest of the organizations in its advancement.

Drawing a colorful word picture of the future of the Home, as the result of the new hospital under construction, Dr. A. C. Bachmeyer, dean of the medical college, University of Cincinnati and superintendent of the Cincinnati General Hospital, described his vision of the hospital's object and good results.

The interest of the patriotic organizations of the state is back of the home at all times, the speakers pointed out and each strived to show the need of the public's whole-hearted interest in the institution. Dr. McClellan stressed the need of unity in interest in the Home and the pledging of support for its advancement for the good of the boys and girls cared for there.

The American Legion had charge of the ceremonies at the girls' cottage, and Capt. C. L. Darlington, Xenia, past state commander, gave a short talk. He expressed his pleasure in the work in progress.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

THE DEGENERATE — Who robbeth his father or his mother, and saith, It is no transgression; the same is the companion of a destroyer.—Prov. 28:24.

CREATING VAST WEALTH

Southern business leaders are almost unanimous in expressing the opinion that the Jones-Reid Flood Control bill and the Deneen-Denison bill will bring increased and permanent prosperity to the southern states. This state of mind is shown by the results of a recent survey.

Governors, mayors, bankers, planters, merchants, railroad presidents and industrial leaders in the Mississippi Valley states—all were asked what influence they believed these bills would have on Southern business. A New Orleans cotton broker declares that "the flood bill destroys the levees-only policy which has long been the curse of the Valley" but also points out that it "does not provide for ultimate stream-flow regulation and for the use for beneficial purposes of now wasted water resources."

A Baton Rouge banker declares that "the benefits to be derived from this improvement of the Mississippi will be due greatly to the reestablishment of confidence of the owners of the lands back of the levees in these states, and the planters who are utilizing such lands; in other words, people who desire to make investments in choice farm lands can do so when the improvements are completed, without the fear of inundation or disaster."

A $25,000,000 increase in land value, due to this flood-control bill, is prophesied by a Tennessee merchant; an advance in bank stocks as well as land values has already taken place in some localities, declares an Arkansas planter; a Kentucky merchant points out that the improvement of the Mississippi will give employment to thousands of men—and thus bring about increased purchasing power in this district.

BOYS AND THRILLS

Misdirected energies are principally to blame for the wrong things done by 58 gangs of boys and girls in New York city, whose doings have been studied by the New York state Baumes commission. These gangs have in many instances taken up stealing, not because of the profit, but because they want adventure.

The question arises, therefore, how to give them some thrills in the right way. They can get them all right from any good athletic sport. Give them a baseball field, or a basketball floor, or a tennis court, and they will not have to take to stealing for adventure. Or set them to saving and saving money, and their job and their bankbook will give them a thrill.

GETTING OVER DELUSIONS

George Mansfield, writing in "The New Age Illustrated," talks about delusions held by intelligent people. Among them he includes such as these: Red-headed people always have quicker tempers; winters were longer and colder when you were a boy; a square jaw is a sign of will power, etc.

The popular beliefs of the community include an incalculable number of such commonly held beliefs, many of which are absurd and contrary to facts. It takes a long time to plant ideas in the public consciousness, and when they once get in there, it takes a long time to get them out. The scientific minded person does not believe an idea because it is handed down to him, or his neighbors tell him so, but he keeps his eyes open to see if it is sustained by his observation.

The Way of the World

By GROVE PATTERSON

MANAGING MOMENTS

Lincoln's Gettysburg address was written on the back of an envelope on the train. Lincoln managed his moments. One of the smartest men the writer ever knew in college was a fellow who used to work problems in analytic geometry by utilizing the moments between classes. In the few minutes between classes, while the rest were talking and laughing and stretching in preparation for another session, he sat quietly apart and did problems.

One of the teachers best remembered after the years is one who began teaching on the way from the classroom door to his desk. He kept at it until the bell rang.

NOT SMART TO BE SMART

There are those who make neatly turned phrases for the sake of neatly turned phrases. There are men and women who gain a reputation for cleverness in conversation by constantly working at the job. They sacrifice anything and anybody for the sake of being thought smart and clever. No chance to make a smart remark, a "wise crack," is overlooked. It may hurt somebody, be unjust, uncalculated for, and unkind. No matter to them if it is clever. No really big man is ever so unkind and thoughtless as that. Smart remarks are very often not worth the price.

THE LEGION

Men who now compose the American Legion once led the rest of America to a new place and a high place from which thousands of men and women got a new and larger view of duty. We camped for a season on this high place, but most of us came down later. These young men who led us there have not forgotten the great adventure in idealism, even if the rest of us have. There is no organization in America that more deservingly commands our affection and support than the American Legion.

MUDDLE AND MYTH

Don't depend on muddle or myth to get you somewhere. Things don't just happen for the better any more than they just happen for the worse. Things happen to us as the result of a cause. Let's be careful about supplying the cause. Some causes are not within our control. Most of them are. Merely to muddle through is the policy of a mental dead beat.

The Diary of a New Yorker

By CLARK KINNAIRD

NEW YORK.—Raiders on Broadway "night clubs," 95 per cent of which are rawdy houses or barroom-cabarets, used to be futile gestures, for proprietors either opened up at other locations the next evening, or continued blandly to operate in further defiance of the law while attorneys used the injunction power to handcuff the dry forces, or resumed operations at the same old stand after the padlock period was over.

But the most recent campaign against these glorified speakeasies, conducted with a determination that Broadway's guile could not beat, has upset the nonchalance of the operators and they are scurrying to cover. Doors of erstwhile gay places now bear such signs as "Closed for the hot months," "Closed for alterations," "Moved to new location."

However, closing the night clubs hasn't made the Gay White Way any less gay. The night clubs were never anything but sucker-joints, devoted to the open-faced gyping of loose-limbed nonentities desirous of being mistaken for persons of importance, or for the costly edification of tourists who think that notables make whoopee in public.

New York's gayest parties, where stage beauties and millionaires, notables and helmsmen give their complexes a romp, aren't held in night clubs or in Greenwich Village, as is popularly supposed by hinterlanders, but in pent-houses atop skyscrapers, on Long Island estates, in Park avenue apartments, or on yachts. What the visitor sees in night clubs running full blast is simply so many reflections of himself.

Despite her recent and many previous arrests, Texas Guinan, the night club queen, insists that she's a good girl, that she never took a drink in her life, that she wouldn't work in a place in which liquor was sold, and that she's good to her mother.

Anyway, she isn't the heartless person she has been pictured to be.

Not long ago an ambitious young man, intent upon impressing some out-of-town friends whom he was showing the town, spread his slender roll of greenbacks along Broadway. Then his guests suggested that the evening and their trip to New York, wouldn't be complete without a visit to the Guinan club. The youth didn't know any graceful way to slide out of the situation, and so was dragged into the club with $12 in his pocket. He knew the $100,000 check there is around $100,000.

Inside, he summed-up the nerve to ask the moment of her time, explained the situation, and asked, "Can we have five bottles of ginger ale and sit down and watch the customers for a while, for $12?"

Texas, moved by his nerve or his insolence, sat down and signed the check herself. The only quartet that ever got in and out of her club on $12!

I didn't believe it until I saw it myself.

Strand and stock boys in the stockrooms of one big department store, covering a vast area, are equipped with roller skates. It was an efficiency man's idea. Other stores are copying it.

Nick the Greek (Nick Forzley), biggest of the race horse plunkers, is dead, leaving not a penny. The other Nick the Greek, Nicholas Dandolas, all-around gambler, is broke. Both were had more than a million. "Sure things" wiped out their bank rolls.

Nick Dandolas' weakness was craps. He would travel over the country, engaging other professionals at faro, poker and roulette, for any stake, and amass hundreds of thousands; then return to New York and be cleaned by dice tressers. He has been known to lose as much as $40,000 that he'd toss a ten.

How to Achieve Beauty

By MME. HELENA RUBINSTEIN

Home Remedies for Hand Troubles

It isn't possible, not even in the 30 years I have devoted to beauty work, to try out every preparation that comes my way. And for most of the accompanying formulae I am indebted to women all over the world. So far have been handed down for three and four generations, others come from over the seven seas, still others are my own, the fruits of many years of experiment and labor.

They are all good, some of them a little more complicated than others, many even elemental in their simplicity.

The first old standby is olive oil. Of course, I freely admit that there is quite as much against it as there is in its favor. It's greasy, for one thing, so if you use it, rub it first into the palms of your hands, and then dust with powder to catch up the excess oiliness, and rub off with a coarse towel.

Palm oil is another old remedy for redness and chapping, but this must be applied in the same way. I do believe that you feel as I do, that the more modern hand cream is much better, less troublesome, and when properly chosen, is never followed by dryness and irritation of the skin.

However, there are other remedies. One—which dates back to the inspiration of the great grandmother of a very modern young lady who has changed the products to suit the times. It consisted of impregnating a square of old linen or muslin with nut-tallow, and wiping her hands off on it after every bit of manual labor the times demanded of her. Her white hands were soft and lovely until she was sixty. You can do the same thing and have the same results by using your hand cream and a thin tissue.

Many sensitive hands which angrily resent the frequent use of soap will take most kindly to washing preparations such as pure pastes or beauty grains. You may be modern and buy these already prepared, or try one of the following powders.

Powdered blanched almonds 8 oz.
Cuttlefish bone, powdered .4 oz.
Powdered castile .4 oz.
Powdered orris .2 oz.
Oil of cloves .1-2 dram.
Oil of lavender .1 dram.

Another old, old recipe calls for two ounces of powdered marshmallow root and two ounces of carbonate of soda stirred into 12 ounces of barley meal.

An English formula of undated origin consists of:

Two ounces almond soap dissolved in two ounces lemon juice. When mixed add one ounce each of bitter almonds and glycerine, and a half ounce of potassium carbonate.

A modern substitute for soap, suitable for the finest of skins and simple to obtain, is the following:

Powdered tragacanth .100 grains.
Rose water .5 drams.
Glycerine .1-1.2 ounces.
Tincture of benzoin .3 drams.
Orange flower water .5 to 10 drops.

Bran bags and oatmeal bags are other beauty aids of long ago. The bran or meal is bound in a little bag and soaked in the water until it becomes cloudy. A few drops of aromatic vinegar is a welcome addition to this wash. Or a slice of lemon may be bound in the bag with the bran or meal.

Behind the Scenes in Washington

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON — Numerous letters from subscribers, to the Washington newspapers, now that the presidential campaign is on, contain strenuous appeals to the country to turn thumbs down on the G. O. P., on account of the diabolical hash the District of Columbia government has been making out of the capital's looks since the Republicans last came into power.

No doubt most people who don't live here will say this is going it pretty strong—trying to make one single city's good looks the vital issue in a national election. Well, the fact is, I do not suppose the writers of these letters really know what they suggest.

At the same time, the Washington situation has to be seen and experienced to be appreciated. Everybody, I take it, knows theoretically that the capital has not a word to say about its own municipal administration. But I question if many folks realize how it works out in practice.

How would St. Louis, for instance, enjoy being governed by Baur (Me.), San Diego, Seattle and Miami?

Is it likely that it would be governed thus to its own satisfaction? Such is Washington's unhappy fix—except that responsibility for Washington's welfare is scattered in a great many more directions than any mere four points of the compass.

Not counting the Washingtonians—who have no more voice in the matter than so many Hottentots—the only people who take any keen personal interests in District of Columbia developments are a rather small group, whose chief aim is to direct them so as to fatten their individual bank accounts.

They are real estate promoters principally. War-time Washington—previously a good deal of an overgrown village—for obvious reasons increased tremendously in population. The increase continued into the post-war period. It attracted the realtors' attention. They resolved to make the most of it.

Perhaps they are creating a great metropolis. They certainly are creating a hideous one. Old-fashioned Washington's beauty always lay largely in its glorious trees—in the business as well as in the residential districts. The real estate chaps have no use for trees. A tree, as they view it, is a dead waste of just that much space, which ought to be capitalized. Other cities have none on their main shopping streets—why Washington? Besides, they occupy room where the realtors want to park drivers' cars. Native Washingtonians have fought the deforestation campaign tooth and nail for ten years, but with the steady loss of street after street, every season.

The realtors have all the "pull" with the District government. As the present summer draws toward its close, devastated northern France had nothing, as a scene of desolation, on a considerable part of Washington.

The latest scheme evolved by the forces of progress and improvement is to pave the downtown parks and green squares and circles, with brick or asphalt. They are needed, it seems, to serve as parking places.

By the time these boys are through with us we shall have a really fine modern city. As we understand the anti-Smithites among our Democratic friends, the South will be neither solid nor liquid this year.—Ashville Times.

Should We Dislike Folks? Or Try To See Good In Them? Now in this matter of liking people or not liking them, what should we do? Of course it is impossible to like everyone. Granted. But why be in a state of warfare because of it? You doubtless have your idiosyncrasies. I have mine. Maybe you don't like mine and I don't like yours. They make us yearn to hate things at one another, but maybe if we stopped thinking about one another's peculiarities and tried to find something that we had in common, we might forget that we dislike one another and even come to be friends.

"Dear Mrs. Lee: I am a girl 18. I have one fault. I will not go with a fellow if I do not like him, even if he shows me a wonderful time. The fellows I like, my parents and brother will not let me go with, and the ones I don't like I won't go with, so lately I have been sitting home. It's so funny, the boys I like and would like to go out with, talk to me, dance with me, but never ask me for a date. I just can't understand it. I go with the older crowd of boys, 20 and up. I don't like the boys of my own age, they're silly. All they think about is necking. Recently I met a fellow. He took it liking to me and I to him, but he has a girl here and she is very jealous of him. I know he doesn't like her, but he can't take away from her. He won't get away out, but I am afraid of his girl's and other people's talking, and my brother won't let me go out with him. Life is so peculiar, I'm so disgusted. Mrs. Lee, I hate to sit at home while my girl friends go out. Please help me. I guess you'll think I'm silly, but please advise me." DOTTIE

Well, Dottie, why not go with the boys of whom you approve, and let your brother approve, and then a chance. Maybe you like them better than you like me. There's an old saying you know. "If you can't have what you like, you must like what you can have." And don't try to take an other girl's beau away, even if you do think he likes you better. It's not sporty and he isn't tied to her, you know. No matter what he says he doesn't HAVE to go with her if he doesn't want to. Make your brother take you out if he's so fussy about your company. You'll have plenty of boy friends in time, but when you are a married woman you will look back with a great deal of pleasure to the good times you had when you and brother were home. I know I do.

"My Dear Mrs. Lee: Could you advise me on the following: Should a girl almost 15 go out once in awhile with young respectable fellows? Should father object if mother consents? If so, what should he do? Should mother keep daughter in the house to please father?" W.

In my estimation girls of 15 may go out once in awhile with nice boys of whom their parents approve. Father and mother should decide on a policy, and in case the disagree, they should compromise.

Peter's Adventure

By MRS. FLORENCE SMITH VINCENT

BETWEEN SKY AND SEA
At this last remark of Mr. Bobolink's, Mrs. Bobolink laughed and said in an aside to Peter but so loud others could hear:

"And I said 'what are you talking about, Bob, anyhow? Haven't I been ready since we left the seaweed? Come on, now. Catch me, if you can.' Then off I flew."

"But it didn't take me long to fly up to you," cried Bobolink. "And what a sail that was! The air was deliciously cool and the sun bright and warm, so we were neither too hot nor too cold. Below us were the dancing waves, with here and there and everywhere specks of white foam with which the sunbeams played a merry game of tag. Above us soft fleecy white clouds floated lazily across the blue sky. No matter which way we looked everything was beautiful."

"On and on we flew. The Great Ball hung right above us now only it was red no longer but golden, and so bright that it made our eyes blink to look toward it. Once when we tried to we bumped into each other—it was light made both wife and I quite blind, for a moment. I didn't try it again. It is not pleasant to be flying over your sight—even for a second. Then the Ball rolled slowly to one side—the opposite side to where it had been before it rose so high—and dropped lower and lower. After a while it rays made a path for us in the water. How pretty it was, all shining and glittery! Little by little the light changed. Now it was golden, now it was blue, now it was pink or yellow or lavender, and at last we decided

Reserves Outhit, Bunch Blows For 7 To 4 Victory

MONTE YOUNGS TAKE DEFEAT SUNDAY AT WASHINGTON PARK

Seventeenth Win For Chambliss Team; Have Lost Twice.

ALTHOUGH the Reserves outhit, the Chambliss team succeeded in bunching their blows more effectively, and with the invaluable assistance of six enemy errors, defeated the Monte Youngs 7 to 4 Sunday afternoon at Washington Park.

Guy McMichael, Reserve pitcher, was hit with considerable freedom—the 23-pointers making eleven singles—but managed to keep them fairly well scattered. The Reserves garnered only seven hits but these were bunched in the four innings in which runs were scored.

Sherman, who started in the box for Dayton, held the Reserves to one hit in the first five pounds, but gradually weakened and voluntarily retired in the eighth inning when the local nine won the game with a three-run rally, based on three hits, including a double and triple.

R. Sanford, Dayton catcher, made three hits, including a double, while B. Fisher, third sacker, connected with a double and a home run, the circuit clout coming in the eighth inning with the bases empty. The smash was a liner that cleared the center field fence.

Durnbaugh and Tangeman were the only Reserve players able to solve Sherman's pitching to any great degree. Tangeman hit a single and double and walked once. Durnbaugh contributed a pair of singles.

The fielding features of the game were furnished by C. Sanford, Dayton center fielder. He had a field day with six putouts, all on hard chances and capped it all with a sensational catch of a long fly by Johnson in the ninth. He speared the ball under the center field fence and then turned and somersaulted over a bench, injuring his leg. Incidentally, casualties were numerous. Umpire Kirby and Mike Weller, catcher, also being victims of minor injuries.

Reserves took a temporary lead in the first inning when Johnson walked, stole second and scored on a single by Durnbaugh. Dayton went ahead in the fourth after two hits when successful doubles by E. Eckert and B. Fisher followed by singles by C. Sanford and R. Sanford scored two runs.

Hoefler was safe on a fielder's choice but Cyphers tossed out Sherman with the bases loaded for the final out.

The Clothiers tallied another run in the sixth when Klee dropped C. Sanford's dirtiest fly and R. Sanford followed with a double. Sherman singled to right but R. Sanford was nipped at the plate by Johnson's accurate throw home.

Reserves got one run back in the last of the sixth on an error by E. Eckert, a single by Tangeman and Barlow's double over third which scored one runner. Three errors and a single by Durnbaugh enabled the Reserves to score two more runs and take the lead again in the seventh. B. Fisher's home run with none on base again tied it up in the eighth. Reserves then proceeded to win out in the eighth on Tangeman's double, a single by Cyphers a triple by Weller and an out at first. Dayton was retired in one-two-three order in the ninth.

The victory was the seventeenth of the season for the Reserves against the Grismer Fuels of Dayton next Sunday on a winner-take-all basis. The winning team gets the entire game receipts. Reserves defeated a double-header with the Grismer team earlier in the season and Sunday's game will be the third and deciding contest.

YOUTHFUL LOU MEYER WINNER OF ALTOONA AUTO RACE CLASSIC

ALTOONA, Pa., Aug. 20.—Lou Meyer, youthful Californian, who first won fame by winning the Indianapolis races Memorial Day, today wore a new crown after winning the 200-mile International speed sweepstakes at Altoona speedway before a holiday crowd of 65,000. Young Meyer, driving a Stutz Special, maintained a pace of 117 miles an hour, covering the distance in 1:42.45.

Bob McDonough, of San Francisco, driving a Flying Cloud, who led Meyer during the early part of the classic, was forced into second money and lost the most generous slice of the $27,000 money when a flat tire catapulted his car into the pit on the 161st lap. McDonough lost nearly two and one-half miles in the spill, but roared ahead of the others to place second in 1:43:43.

Cliff Woodbury, of Chicago, driving for Fred Cemer, placed third in 1:44:55, with Billy Arnold, Philadelphia, fourth, Dave Evans, San Antonio, fifth and Ray Keech, holder of the world's speed record, sixth.

Leon Duray won the preliminary five mile sprint in 2:18 3/4 seconds, while Ralph Hepburn took the ten mile sprint in 4:42 3/10.

YOUTH INJURED AS AUTO HITS TRUCK AT HAWKER BRIDGE

Jesse Nye, 19, colored, 907 E. Second St., Xenia, is in Miami Valley Hospital, Dayton, with a fractured jaw, painful bruises and side injuries, and four other persons received lesser injuries as a result of a head-on collision between a touring car and a heavy truck beneath the Hawker bridge, on the Dayton and Xenia pike, near the Montgomery County line at 6:30 a. m. Monday.

Nye, driver of the touring car, was the most seriously injured and was removed to the Dayton hospital by a passing motorist.

Honor Ewing, colored, also of 907 E. Second St., Xenia, and Jesse Hall, colored, E. Third St., Xenia, occupants of Nye's machine, were also hurt, suffering minor bruises. Their auto overturned and was completely wrecked when it was struck by a heavy touring car.

The touring car was traveling toward Dayton and the truck toward Xenia. O. H. Cornwell, county road patrolman, who investigated the accident, declared that witnesses said the touring car cut across the road in front of the truck which was being driven on the correct side of the pike.

BARN DESTROYED BY FIRE SUNDAY WITH MOST OF CONTENTS

Fire of undetermined origin destroyed a large hay barn on a farm owned by P. A. Wigal, formerly the Guy Little farm, two and one-half miles northwest of Jamestown between the Xenia and Cedarville pikes early Sunday afternoon.

While the cause is not definitely known, it is believed the blaze may have started from a carelessly tossed cigarette. No estimate was placed on the loss to the barn and contents.

The doors of the structure facing the Wigal farm house were closed, preventing discovery of the flames until they had gained great headway. Members of the family and neighbors noticed the blaze about the same time, but it was then too late to save the contents.

Mr. Wigal personally lost the greater part of his farming implements, including a hay baler. A quantity of baled hay owned by Guy Little, the former owner of the farm, was also destroyed, as were a wheat drill and binder belonging to Herman Bricker.

It is covered part of the loss is covered by insurance. Neighbors blowing in a different direction the flames would undoubtedly have spread to other buildings on the farm, including the eight-room frame residence, which are all grouped together.

OHIO YOUTH KILLED IN AUTO ACCIDENT

CIRCLEVILLE, O., Aug. 20.—The body of John Fox, 17, arrived here today for burial. Fox was killed in an auto crash Saturday afternoon near Plattsbush, N. Y., when the machine in which he was riding was knocked from the road by two other autos said to have collided.

The site read where Mrs. Thomas James had lost gems worth $4,000 and returned the property. Five hundred dollars was her reward.

LUCKY READER
DAYTON, O., Aug. 20.—Because Josephine Kelly, Dayton, read the papers, she is $500 richer.

Mrs. Kelly found a broken string of beads in a park recently, and thinking they were "cheap" was planning to re-thread them for herself.

Then she read where Mrs. Thomas James had lost gems worth $4,000 and returned the property. Five hundred dollars was her reward.

MAKE-UP

A Romance of the Footlights BY JALMA SIOUX SCARBERRY ©1928 CENTRAL PRESS ASSN. INC.

READ THIS FIRST:

Janet Mary James, eighteen, has an ambition to go on the stage because her mother, who died the night she was born, had been a famous opera star. In New York Janet meets Ballard Riley, young successful physician, who is known as a woman hater, and dates her up, and at first Janet gets a lot of fun teasing Ballard about his ideas. Later she knows she loves him and she is not so sure of him. Ballard keeps her guessing. Janet is given a small dancing part in Mort Golustein's latest musical revue. Mort thinks she will make a star. In New York Janet meets Flavia Marlowe, rich and fashionable, who is just beginning to show her age and trying to hide it. Janet gets a "truly" giggle, boy friend or Flavia's, but he is determined to cause trouble between Janet and Flavia by acting as though he is in love with Janet.

Janet and Flavia, acting as though he is in love with Janet, Sir Henry Martindale, one of the villagers, has taken a rather interested in Janet. He has interested Mort Golustein in her acting. Janet has gone to a New Year's eve party, given by Flavia, and "Putty" Bigelow has shown her much attention.

Putty makes a scene, and Flavia, shaken with jealous rage because she thinks Janet is making love to Putty, faints unconscious and later dies.

Ballard and Janet are driving up town one evening when they discover Janet's father, a self-styled preacher, is holding a revival service. They enter, and Daniel James, holds his daughter, Janet, up to ridicule, for being on the stage.

Ballard tells Janet that he loves her. After he gets home he suffers great remorse for having told her. At the stage door that night Janet finds a group of reporters.

Janet's name and picture is emblazoned all over the front pages of the papers, it seems that her father has renounced her and Mort Golustein is endeavoring to sign up Parson James for a big revival service at the Garden. Golustein figures father and daughter, as rival headliners on Broadway, will be great publicity for his new musical show. Lotus Flower, little Japanese servant, tells Janet she has brought a letter from "Putty" Bigelow.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXIX

It was written with a hand that had trembled—blurred.

"Dear little Angel! When you get this I will be dead. It's no use. I'm no good, and never will be. This is every cent I have in the world, and I want you to have it. Use it on your voice. What you did that night is the biggest thing I have ever seen, and I am doing this because I know that Flavia would want me to if she could come back I am giving this to Lotus to take to you because, even though you hate me, I know this will be a shock, coming like this, and want her to be with you. Good-bye and God bless you, Angel—Putty."

Lotus put her arms around Janet—wonderingly. She was white as death, and did not move. The note fluttered from her fingers and Lotus shook her before she spoke.

"Get—the phone book," she sunk into a chair and could scarcely see the pages.

Putty's hotel! She hoped she would find in time to save him. She must find out!

The operator was very sorry, but Mr. Bigelow had met with an accident—yes, he was dead.

For the first time in her life Janet felt faint. Lotus Flower caught her when she fell.

When Janet regained consciousness everything seemed to be swimming before her. She had never been so ill in her life—or needed someone quite so badly.

Lotus Flower was thoroughly frightened. Almost incoherently, Janet told her what had happened. That "Putty" Bigelow had killed himself, even while she was delivering his note to her. Lotus did not look at all troubled. She tried to comfort Janet.

"He had man, I hate him. Make Misses Flavia unhappy all time. Make you unhappy. Better off dead."

Janet felt she must have someone to help her who would understand. There seemed to be something sinister in the night. Her nerves were on edge, and she was shivering as it cold. Ballard, Oh, if she could only have him with her now!

Suddenly she straightened. Why not? She was ill—really ill. She felt as though she could never get up from where she was sitting. Like a little girl she was thoroughly frightened, afraid of the dark. Why should she not have Lotus Flower call the hospital and ask for him? For she did not believe he was really out of town.

Impulsively she gave Lotus instructions and waited—breathless.

ly, while she called the hospital. He was at his apartment—but they gave her the number when Lotus told them it was an important call from an ill friend.

He was on the wire. Janet was frantic. What if he would refuse to come to her? She would die.

"Tell him something dreadful has happened and that I am ill and need him," Janet said.

Ballard did not wait for further information. A half hour later he was at the door. Pale and wild, he rushed into the room.

"Janet—dear—what is wrong?" With a glad little cry she fell in his arms and burst into tears of relief. How relieved he looked that she was not hurt. She would never forget the joy in his face—and how miserable he had looked when he came in.

Lotus Flower smiled happily. Now Misses Janet would be all right. She went into the kitchenette and shut the door.

Ballard was a sympathetic listener. She was so unstrung he knew the only thing to do was to let her tell him all about it. That would relieve her nervous strain. So he held her in his arms and listened. Janet buried her face in his shoulder, self-consciously.

"Ballard—you don't mind my calling. There was no one—"

He cut her off with a kiss. "Honey, I have been a brute. Forgive me. Some time I will explain my actions." He floundered for words.

Her arms tightened around his neck. "I understand, dear."

In her happiness Janet had almost forgotten about Putty. But suddenly she was reminded of it, and tears gathered in her eyes again.

"Oh, Ballard," she asked, suddenly. "Don't I have terrible things happen to me?"

His voice was serious as he looked at her squarely. "This is no time to say 'I told you so,' Janet, but you know I feel that friends like that will never get you anywhere. As long as you select them from that strata of society you can count on experiencing dramatic incidents with regularity. Keep away from that kind of people."

Janet was on the defensive. She drew away from him. "But they were kind, good—why, look, even Putty."

"Yes, he had a fleeting spark of decency. I see, but nevertheless, he was famous for his wild escapades. It would have hurt you to have been seen with him. Just another society loafer."

Janet winced. "Poor Flavia loved him, he could not have been all bad."

"Flavia Marlowe was notorious. You could not possibly have picked out two people more thoroughly unworthy of the friendship of a girl like you," Ballard assured her, not without a certain triumph.

Janet called Lotus Flower and told her she need not stay any longer. She had almost forgotten about her. In the new show she would need a maid—every big principal in a show had a maid she told herself—and she meant to give Lotus Flower a job taking care of her wardrobe.

Despite the drama of the evening, and Putty's suicide, Janet found herself forgetting in the comfort of Ballard's arms. How comforting to be held and understood by the man she loved. She even loved his lecturing, when he looked so serious and sounded so old and wise.

The suicide—the twelve thousand dollars—that she would soon be a Broadway star—nothing mattered! Nothing in the world but the comfort of his arms and the glory of his burning kisses.

KANSAS CITY GIRLS KNOW HOW TO FOIL FLIVVER LOTHARIOS

By ROBERT A. HEREFORD International News Service Staff Correspondent

KANSAS CITY, Aug. 20.—"The auto-shock," pernicious bug, found in abundance in America's one-horse towns, and which like the less harmful firefly operates chiefly after dark, has met his match in Kansas City. The two fair conquerors who have devised a scheme to outwit the "Lizzie Lotharios" gladly offered to disclose their first tryout this land of hell-bottoms and velvet pompadors.

Watch the two canny Kansas Cityettes in action—

The scene: Main Street in the downtown section.

The Time: Midnight.

The Characters: Two of those lovely creatures of the type that you can always just failed to muster up enough courage to speak to.

Enter Villains

Enter the first set of villains. They are youthful, yet they are wicked and they are mounted on the front in fact the only seat of a dilapidated flivver, which has seen better nights.

First villain in a shrill tenor that has little hope of ever growing into a bass—"Hee hee hence fair ones, mount with us upon our noble steed and let Papa deliver you to your respective domiciles."

First Coquette, (holding a lily white finger to rosy red lips, and expressing as much alarm as a pair of china blue eyes and a round doll face are capable of.) "Shhh. Every body'll see us get in here. Drive down to Twenty-fourth and Main and wait for us there."

First set of Villains in chorus and to the accompaniment of the grinding gears, "Cheerio—we shall meet you there."

Enter the second set of villains sniffing disdainfully of the exhaust pipe smells left by first set of villains.

They would be laughing up their coat sleeves at the apparent chagrin of their predecessors only the second set of villains do not wear coats. They are older villains, smug villains, regular "villain" villains. They have a big blue racer. "C'mon girls hop in and we'll take you for a spin."

First Coquette (again doing her stuff)—"Twenty-fifth and Main—on the northwest corner—it's dark down there and nobody'll see us get in."

Villains Depart

Second set of villains exit with flourish of klaxons.

A street car rumbles up and the two girls enter. At Twenty-fourth and Main two expectant voices tinkle. "Here we are."

Two key stares.

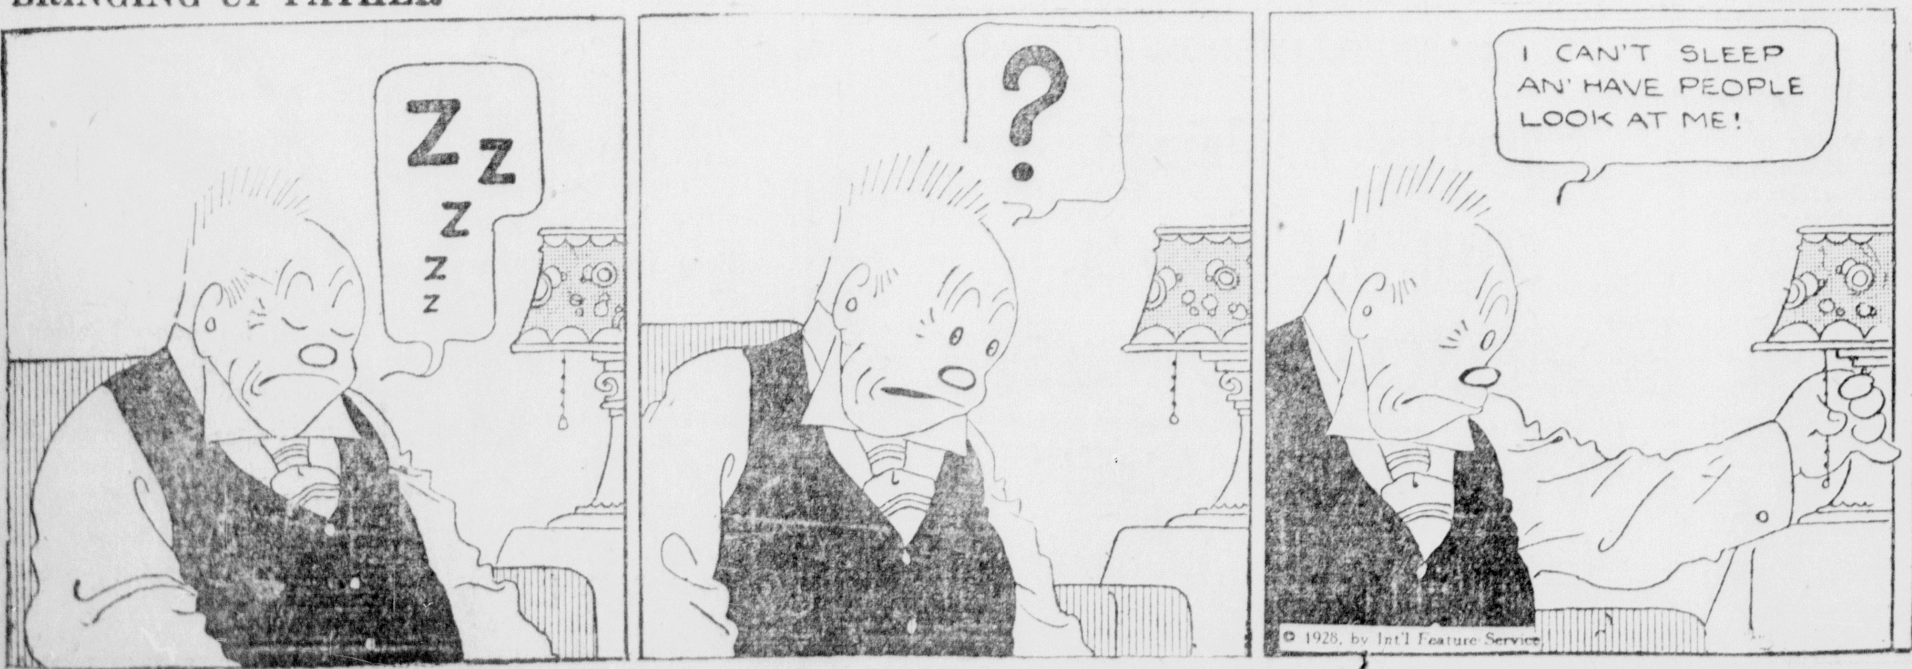

At Twenty-fifth and Main—from the shadows of the northwest corner, "Here we are girls."

To Marry Heiress

Gentlemanly Gene Tunney, whose engagement to Miss Josephine Lauder of Greenwich, Conn., is partially confirmed by both his friends and hers. The society girl is heiress to a fortune estimated at more than $50,000,000. Tunney is believed to be a guest at the camp of the Lauder family in Maine.

The Theater

By C. K.

NEW YORK, Aug. 20.—Film folk invariably have single-track minds and so their only train of thought now has to do with sight-and-sound pictures. (Incidentally most of the producers are dropping such designations as Photophone, Movietone, Vitaphone, Vocafilm, Fotovox, Firnaphone, etc.), in favor of the simple term, sound pictures. But that one subject gives them PLENTY to talk about.

For one thing, Broadway producers are unmistakably indicating that they are not going to sit tight and lose their businesses and let all the profits from talking-movies flow into Hollywood coffers. At least eight producers, including Florenz Ziegfeld, William A. Brady, Lee and Jake Shubert, A. H. Woods, and Arthur Hammerstein, are ever increasing number of jobs to actors and actresses.

Producers of sound pictures have already learned that what the public likes best is something that tickles the ribs. Comedies and light dramatic sketches are most in demand among the short talking pictures, with singers, musical acts, news reels less popular.

Helen Hayes, star of "Coquette," and Charles MacArthur, co-author of "The Front Page," are being congratulated along Broadway today on their marriage, which occurred without previous announcement last Friday. The actress and the playwright had been engaged for some two years but no intimation was given that they intended to be married soon.

Twenty Years '08- Ago '28

There will be a reunion of the graduates and students of Xenia Female College during Home-Coming, September 1, at Trinity Church.

Dr. J. C. Acheson, president of Caldwell College, Danville, Ky., and his wife are visiting Dr. and Mrs. B. R. McClellan. The first annual Y. M. C. A. picnic will be held Friday at Neff Park.

Elbert Babb, Harold Messenger and Louis Baldwin went to Lewistown reservoir for a fishing jaunt.

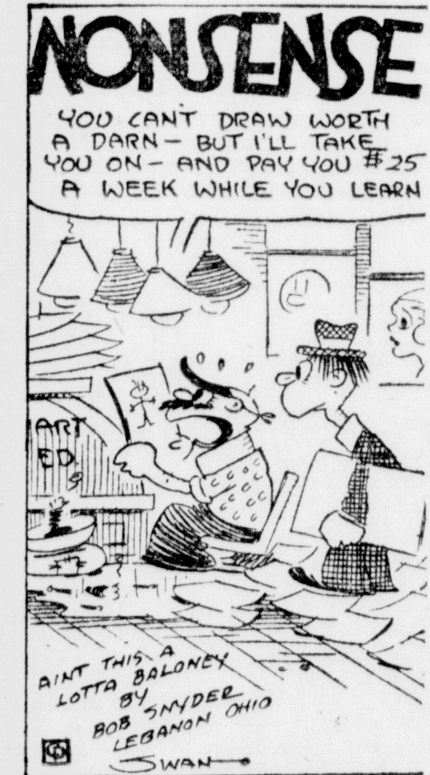

Mary Garden, prima donna and stormy petrel of American opera, who, reports from abroad say, will trip to the altar with Pierre Plessis, French newspaper publisher. Recently Miss Garden underwent a "face-lifting" operation in Paris, but it was performed in her own hotel suite to dodge unwelcome publicity.

are in a combination which has as its purpose the production of talking pictures based on stage successes.

The plan the producers have in mind is to continue to produce plays in the regular manner on Broadway, and to film them only for exhibition on the road or for later exhibition in New York. In making the movies there would be no extra expense to the producers except that of the equipment itself, since everything else would be provided for the stage production. Equity, the actors' union, is alarmed at the prospect, as it feels it would mean virtual extinction of the already skeletonized road, which is the training-ground of new blood and the gentle haven of the veterans. The answer of the producers to that complaint is that film actors give only one performance of each piece, and that movies have given

COMEDY TOMMY MONDAY NIGHT HIGH SPOT ON CHAUTAUQUA HERE

The Saturday evening program at Chautauqua was given by the L. E. Gilbert Co. Ellsworth Gilbert again heads the company, which includes his wife, Thelma Gilbert, and Adaline Laws, sopranos; Mildred Mason and Mary Jane Rhea, contraltos; Harold Baumgardner and Myron Taylor, tenors; Carl Dews, baritone, and Ruth Taylor, pianist.

An effective cathedral setting was revealed as the curtain rose on the first part of the evening's program and the gowned chorus in processional sang "Onward Christian Soldiers," this followed by a series of beautiful sacred numbers offered with dignity and solemnity.

"Song of the Vagabond," "The Italian Street Song" and the spiritual "Leanin' on the Lord" and many others were sung during the second part of the production. Colonial costumes enhanced the beauty of the last part of the program, which included melodies of the southland and American folk songs, and the exciting of the graceful and stately minuet.

Monday afternoon the audience and especially the young people were delighted with the lecture on pigeons, accompanied by a demonstration with a large number of live birds, by Frank H. H. Hollmann, editor of the American Pigeon Journal.

Monday evening the second play of the Chautauqua, "Tommy", a metropolitan comedy success is to be given. Pa and Ma Thurber, Marie, Uncle Dave, Tommy and Bernard are the characters in the play. The play deals with the modern American home and a fine plot and story runs throughout.

On Tuesday, the last day of Chautauqua, Solis Marimba Band.

DOUBLE AILMENT IS CONQUERED BY MODERN MEDICINE

Xenia Resident So Nervous She Could Not Hold Cup of Coffee—Konjola Brought Almost Immediate Relief

Seems like the seeming wonders accomplished by Konjola will never cease, judging from the reports of recoveries made to the Konjola Man at the Gallaher Drug Store, 33 E. Main St., where he is explaining daily to eager searchers after health this amazingly efficient remedy for troubles of the stomach, liver, kidney and bowels, and for neuritis, rheumatism and extreme nervousness. Among the grateful ones who delight to tell what Konjola has done for them is Mrs. L. M. Stephens, Waynesville, R. F. D. No. 1, near this city. It is a graphic story she tells in her happiness in being relieved of a stomach affliction that caused her untold suffering for many years, and how Konjola banished a most aggravated type of nervousness. To the Konjola Man Mrs. Stephens said:

"Many years of suffering I put through with a badly disordered stomach. The things to eat I wanted most I dared not eat at all, and what little plain food I could take would not digest, with the result that constant pain was with me. This kept up year after year, and though I tried everything supposed to be helpful I got no better. In fact, I became steadily worse, until my nervous system broke down almost completely. Upon rising in the morning I trembled so that I could not hold a cup of coffee. At night, when I retired, my heart pounded so rapidly that I was frightened. My feet and ankles were badly swollen, and my system generally was seriously depleted."

"I heard about Konjola and what it was doing for victims of chronic indigestion and nervousness, and I decided to see if it would help me. The result was astonishing. No sooner had I taken a few doses than I began to see results. As I continued with the treatment my indigestion became better and better, and my nerves calmer. With the third bottle came complete recovery. My nerves are as steady as steel, and I can eat anything without discomfort. Just think—after years of suffering to be made well again in a few short weeks. Konjola has made a new woman of me, and I consider it a privilege to be able to make this statement for all to read."

"Thousands of such statements are in the Konjola files, mute but eloquent tributes from people whom Konjola has transformed from invalidism to a state of health. Konjola is a natural remedy, containing the juices of 22 herbs and leaves, and ten other ingredients—all of acknowledged medicinal value. These ingredients, each with a special mission to perform within the body, all go to work at once. Results from Konjola are not only quick and certain, but lasting. New health is just around the corner; Konjola points the way."

The Konjola Man is at the Gallaher Drug Store, 33 East Main St., where he is meeting the public daily, introducing and explaining the merits of this remedy. A-A

JERUSALEM, O., Aug. 20.—With a pill case stowed in the rear of his buggy, drawn by "Nig" his faithful old horse, Dr. G. W. ### ART GOEBEL BREAKS FLIGHT RECORD SET BY MACREADY-KELLY

Pilot And Passenger
Cross Continent In
19 Hours

CURTISS FIELD, N. Y., Aug. 20.—Art Goebel, winner of the Dole flight to Hawaii, arrived here this morning, establishing a new record for a non-stop flight across the continent.

Goebel left Los Angeles at 12:06 p. m., yesterday (Pacific Standard Time) and arrived here at 11:08 a. m. (Eastern Daylight Time), making the long journey in eighteen hours and fifty-eight minutes.

Goebel was accompanied by Harry Tucker, Santa Monica sportsman, in the plane "Yankee Doodle," a Lockheed Vega with a Pratt Whitney motor capable of 175 miles an hour.

The previous record of twenty-six hours and fifty minutes was held by Lieuts. MacReady and Kelly, army flyers.

This flight is the "Yankee Doodle's" second attempt to take the trans-continental record. Several months ago the plane, piloted by Lee Shoenair, flew from San Diego, Pa., by tops after being in the air for 13 1/2 hours.

The plane carried two tons of gas and oil.

Frank Titchener, publisher of the "Aero Digest," who acted as official timer was the first to greet the flyers when they stepped from the plane. He gave the official time of the flight as eighteen hours and fifty-eight minutes. He gave the official time of arrival as 11:08 a. m., but said he had accepted Tucker's statement that the wheels of the plane had not left the ground at Los Angeles until 12:10 p. m., Pacific time, although reports from Los Angeles gave the time of the take-off as 12:06.

Painted on the white plane were its name "Yankee Doodle" and a red, white and blue arrow, running the length of the fuselage, and the names of Goebel and Tucker and the plane's race number, forty-four.

The trans-continental air derby, scheduled to start from Roosevelt Field, September 12.

Goebel said the record flight from Los Angeles, was made in preparation for the forthcoming derby, and that he will be accompanied by Tucker. He was reluctant to name some of the places he passed over on the flight, stating that he had discovered a route which he expected would aid him in the coming race and which he did not wish to outline to his competitors. He did say he passed over Albuquerque, N. M., Wichita, Kan., St. Louis and Columbus, O.

Goebel and Tucker both said that although they had provisions on board, they had not eaten since leaving Los Angeles, and their first concern was to go to a local hotel for luncheon.

From there they went to the Ambassador Hotel, in Manhattan where they will stay while preparing for the cross-country flight.

The flight was made at a fairly high altitude, crossing mountains at 10,000 feet and averaging 150 miles an hour. Ninety gallons of fuel remained in the tank at the end of the trip.

REPORT 26,000 SLAIN IN YEAR

MOSCOW, Aug. 20.—Twenty-six thousand Chinese communists have been executed by the Nationalists in the past year, according to a report from the Chinese Federation of Labor received today by the Red Internationale of France Unions.

The federation warned against the Kuomintang.

A short report declared that "a total of 218,000 Chinese workers and civilian peasants slaughtered during the period covered by the report without cause other than that they passively resisted the treacheries of the Chinese generals."

About 36,000 of those beheaded were trade union members. Almost half of the total membership of the Chinese communist party were killed in what is described as a "ruthless hunt for red heads."

The repudiating rapprochement of the Nationalist government and the Imperialist United States, it declared that "political and commercial penetration by the United States will eventually turn China into a vassal colony of the most powerful nation in the world today—America."

IT'S BALONEY!

CINCINNATI, O., Aug. 20.—"It's the baloney!"

When the radio audience of WLW heard this succinct expression boom out of their loudspeakers Saturday night, just after the acceptance speech of Senator Charles Curtis had been broadcast, they gasped in astonishment—and announcer William Steers was still persisting today as he explained that the ambiguous words meant the title of an organ solo to follow from the station's studio and had no connection with the vice presidential nominee's speech at Topeka.

Indignant Republicans and gleeful Democrats deluged newspaper offices with telephone calls, but studio officials declared the program had been arranged weeks in advance of the booking of the acceptance address and that the title of the first number could not have been designed to reflect on the Curtis speech.

SENATOR CURTIS ON WAY TO WASHINGTON AFTER ACCEPTANCE

First Address Is Scheduled Thursday In Providence

TOPEKA, Kan., Aug. 20.—Senator Charles Curtis was on his way to Washington today to open his campaign in the east, the Republican vice-presidential nominee who officially launched his campaign here Saturday with his acceptance speech left for the capital yesterday.

Senator Curtis will make his first eastern address in Providence, R. I., on Thursday. After this speech the senator is expected to talk before New York, Connecticut, Maine and Kentucky audiences, but these appointments are all tentative and will be discussed by the national committee when Senator Curtis arrives in Washington Tuesday.

The senator who was born in North Topeka sixty-eight years ago, and who has been a resident here since, has asked the national committee to allow him to close his campaign where he opened it in his own home state. He expects to spend the latter part of his campaign tour in the middle west ending it at some point in Kansas and coming to Topeka to vote.

Among the congratulatory telegrams which the senator received following his acceptance speech was one from 3,000 Oklahoma Indians.

HOOVER SOUNDS NEW TOLERANCE APPEAL ON EASTWARD TRIP

Candidate Receives
Cheering News In
Southwest

ABOARD HOOVER TRAIN, EN ROUTE TO KANSAS CITY, Aug. 20.—Having sounded a new appeal for religious freedom in the heart of the Catholic southwest, Herbert Hoover crossed Kansas today en route to a series of farm conferences at his birthplace in West Branch, Iowa.

The Republican nominee will reach his birthplace early tomorrow morning, spend the day reviewing scenes familiar to his boyhood and deliver his first prepared farm speech at night. He will spend Wednesday and Thursday at Cedar Rapids, meeting horny-handed sons of toil and farm leaders from all sections of the middle west. He will resume his return trip to Washington late Thursday.

On his journey east through Arizona and New Mexico, Hoover received assurance from Republican leaders that he would carry both states. He spoke to a dozen crowds from the rear platform of his train, including one prepared speech at Albuquerque. It was in his speech with Catholics predominating in his audience, that Hoover sounded the religious liberty note.

It is like to remember in these days of the occasion of raising the American flag in this state by General Kearney, when he made a statement that is as true today as it was then," said Hoover. "He said: 'We come as friends to make this a part of representative government. In our government all men are equal. Every man has a right to serve God according to his conscience and his faith.'"

"This was a great charter for a new member of this union. It embodied the true spirit of American liberties."

In each state, the Republican leaders boarded his train. The woman leaders were entertained by Mrs. Hoover, who is rapidly sharing honors with her husband as a campaigner. The men leaders went into conference with Hoover. This was the rule Saturday in Arizona. It was continued Sunday in New Mexico and again today in Kansas.

The schedule for Hoover's train carried him into Dodge City at 8:35 mountain time for a fifteen-minute stop. He spoke from the rear platform briefly to a crowd that gathered around the train. At 1:15 central time he was due in Hutchinson, Kans., for another brief stop. He was to reach Newton, Kan., at 7:30 tomorrow morning. Despite the optimistic note sounded by Republican leaders in both Arizona and New Mexico, Hoover realized that the Republican party faces a stiff fight in both states.

After a twenty-minute halt in Kansas City, Hoover will go on to his birthplace, reaching West Branch at 7:30 tomorrow morning. Despite the optimistic note sounded by Republican leaders in both Arizona and New Mexico, Hoover realized that the Republican party faces a stiff fight in both states.

CINCINNATI BEATS AMERICA IN PACKET RACE ON OHIO RIVER

Winner Takes Race In Last Mile Of 15-Mile Stretch

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Aug. 20.—Twenty-eight feet was the margin of victory for the packet Cincinnati over the excursion craft America in their fifteen mile race from Louisville to Rose Island in the Ohio River yesterday. It was announced here today.

The race, an outgrowth of a revival of steamboat racing on the Ohio River by the Chris Greene and the Betsy Ann contest a few weeks ago, was witnessed by thousands of persons from Kentucky, Ohio, and Indiana.

It was a thrilling race. The Cincinnati, captained by James O'Brien, was able to overtake the fleet excursion steamer in the final mile only, and won out in the last sixteenth mile. The time was recorded at one hour, five minutes and forty-eight seconds for the fifteen mile course.

Approximately 500 passengers were aboard the winning steamer Cincinnati while the America carried nearly 2,000 persons.

The river was crowded with all manner of craft carrying enthusiasts of steamboat racing. Overhead airplanes carrying photographers dove and zoomed away. All the while the twin funnels of both steamers poured forth heavy columns of black smoke. There was plenty of noise accompanying the race, but it did not come from the racing steamers whose steam was conserved for propelling purposes. The sirens of the following craft furnished the din.

The moment of the finish that they were forced to proceed nearly a mile beyond the island before they could turn. Judge Fred M. Starck, of Louisville city court, presented Capt. O'Brien with a silver loving cup donated by the merchants of the Louisville wharf section. Acting Mayor Harry Volz of Louisville fired the official starting gun, the America getting the "jump" of nearly a half length.

HASSELL AND CRAMER DISAPPEAR WHILE ON JUMP TO GREENLAND

Grave Anxiety Felt For Aviators Attempting Flight To Sweden; Radio And Flares Used In Search.

HALIFAX, Nova Scotia, Aug. 20.—Radiograms were flashed to ships at sea early today to keep a lookout for Bert Hassell and Parker Cramer, the two American aviators who became lost while attempting a flight from Canada to Greenland.

While the route taken by the airmen was far north of the regulation steamer lane small ships ply the waters where the men may have come down.

Favorable weather conditions were reported off the coast.

Belief is maintained here that the plane was forced to land by mechanical trouble, but there is no explanation of its silence; the last signal from it was received at 3 o'clock Sunday morning.

MOUNT EVANS, Greenland, Aug. 20.—Vigil was maintained here throughout the night for Bert Hassell and Parker Cramer, American aviators who hopped off at Rockford, Ill., to fly to Stockholm, Sweden.

Weather conditions off the coast most a day overdue at Mount Evans, Greenland.

"No sign of Hassell yet. Long overdue."

That was the discouraging report, radioed from Mount Evans, in the hands of the chamber of commerce today. It was signed "Etes," for Elmer Etes, mechanic, who had gone on ahead to greet the plane in Greenland.

Many Rockford citizens remained all night to await word of the missing plane. The hope prevails that the flyers are safe, having lost communication with the outside world through the failure of their broadcasting set.

ROCKFORD, Ill., Aug. 20.—Gloom spread over Rockford today as hope waned for the missing Sweden-bound flyers, Bert Hassell and Parker Cramer, who are also missing after leaving Canada to fly to Stockholm, Sweden.

STOCKHOLM FLYERS ATTEMPTED FLIGHT DEFYING EXPERTS

Dane Advised Wait Until Spring For Ocean Hop.

COPENHAGEN, Aug. 20.—Bert Hassell and Parker Cramer started their flight to Greenland against the advice of Danish polar experts, it was revealed today by Helge Bangsted, who has just returned from Greenland, where he arranged for the landing and refueling of the Hassell airplane.

"I cabled Hassell that he had better wait until spring for the flight as landing and re-starting in Greenland would be very difficult. I am astonished that he started at this time of year."

Bangsted said that he had arranged three landing places at Stromfjord, 1700, 400 and 1500 feet high, but only fifty feet wide. They are surrounded with high rocks and sandbanks. A big risk would be encountered in taking off from a heavily laden airplane from these runways. Bangsted said, because they were not perfectly flat and could not be improved until spring.

"Hassell must have been fully aware," Bangsted said, "of these landing and re-starting difficulties since a full report on the arrangements in Greenland had been sent to him at Rockford."

"Even if Hassell and Cramer succeed in reaching and leaving Greenland the flight to Reykjavik will also be extremely dangerous, as the airplane must fly at an altitude of 8,000 feet in order to clear the ice and fog."

FEW DEATHS MARK WEEK-END TRAFFIC

The toll of traffic fatalities over the week-end was much lower than usually noted, a state-wide check-up by International News Service disclosed today. Despite the clear, cool weather which prevailed generally throughout the state and filled the highways with pleasure bent motorists, auto accidents were few and the number of traffic deaths showed a marked decrease. Among those killed in traffic accidents over the forty-eight hour period were:

COLUMBUS: John D. Shannon, 59, Civil War veteran, killed while crossing street on way to church by taxi cab.

Anna Boyd, 50, dropped dead of heart trouble in street in front of her home.

BROADACRE, Jefferson County: Chester Wiley, 25, and Mary L. Swickart, 17, killed when their auto struck by a Pennsylvania train at grade crossing.

DAYTON: William L. Mott, 65, instantly killed when he walked into the path of a fast B. and O. freight train.

BUTLER OPPOSED TO HOOVER'S STAND ON DRY ENFORCEMENT

Columbia President Resumes Fight On Amendment

NEW YORK, Aug. 20.—Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia University and uncompromising foe of prohibition, today declared his vigorous disapproval of Herbert Hoover's stand for enforcement, reaffirming his belief that the eighteenth amendment must be wiped out "if the constitution itself is to be preserved and protected."

Continuing the fight he began more than a year ago to win the Republican party over to the repeal movement, a fight which he carried personally and lone-handed to the floor of the Kansas City convention after encountering overwhelming defeat in the platform committee Butler declared that "anyone who is opposed to the repeal of the eighteenth amendment must then be in favor of the only alternative, which is the continuance of the present reign of lawlessness, debauchery and government-made crime."

Coupled with his denunciation of Hoover's acceptance speech after action on the prohibition question Butler, in an open letter made public at his Southampton, L. I. summer home, also expressed dissonance with the Republican nominee's stand on disarmament and world peace.

MYSTERY FIRE DESTROYS TWO BARN; INCENDIARY SOUGHT

Fire of mysterious origin destroyed two barns and a shed in New Jasper, southeast of Xenia, late Saturday night, threatened other nearby buildings and was only prevented from igniting residences in the neighborhood by the prompt action of volunteers, who formed a bucket brigade and kept the flames under control.

Barns belonging to Delbert Hite and Alva Stevens and a shed on the Stevens property were burned with small loss as the contents of the three buildings were no valuable, it is said. Stevens, the owner, lives near Jamestown, Ind. The property was occupied by Glen Hite lives in the property owned by Delbert Hite.

Neighbors volunteering as firemen to protect their own property, obtained water with which to fight the flames from wells on the Hite and Stevens properties.

The blaze, believed to have started in the Hite barn, was soon out of control. The three buildings, which were destroyed were situated close together. The fire was discovered at 10 p. m.

It was not learned until after the barns had burned, that the interior of the kitchen at the Stevens residence had also been damaged by fire. Neighbors reported finding oil and pieces of oil-soaked rags on the floor, leading to a theory the flames may have been of incendiary origin.

All doubt that the Marshall-Gowdy faction regained control of Republican politics here at last Tuesday's primary election after a lapse of two years, was removed Saturday night when this group organized the newly-elected Greene County Republican Central Committee.

Fourteen committeemen affiliated with the Marshall-Gowdy group, who signed the petition calling for the meeting, attended the session held in the Common Pleas Court room at the Court House.

The anti-Marshall faction, which was defeated in the fight for party control for the next two years, was not represented at the meeting.

The central committee was organized by the election of J. H. Conklin, Xenia Twp., as chairman, and W. E. Crites, Spring Valley village banker, as secretary.

Guiding itself for the campaign preceding the November election, the committee also appointed an executive committee of thirty-six members, which will probably not hold its own organization meeting until September, leaders announced.

For some time it had been considered possible that control of the central committee was divided, due to doubt as to the factional status of Harry A. Hagler, unopposed for election on the committee in New Jasper Twp. This doubt was removed when Hagler signed the call for the committee meeting and aligned himself with the Marshall-Gowdy faction by helping this group organize the committee.

The action of Hagler in casting his lot with the Marshall-Gowdy forces gives this group party control by a two-vote majority, the ratio being thirteen to eleven.

Following is the personnel of the newly-appointed executive committee: A. C. Mendenhall, Spring Valley Twp.; H. R. Armstrong, Bath Twp.; A. B. Lewis, Jefferson Twp.; F. C. Lackey, Ross Twp.; C. W. Moorman, Jamestown; F. A. Kenfield, Osborn; C. F. Snediker, Fairfield; Walton Spahr, Sugar Creek Twp.; W. E. Crites, Spring Valley Village; S. W. Guyton, Xenia; H. A. Hagler, New Jasper Twp.; Philip W. Thomas, Xenia; J. B. Conklin, Xenia Twp.; Archie Peterson, Miami Twp.; Lewis E. Stewart, Beaver Creek Twp.; Frank E.

Are You Ready

When your Children Cry for It

Baby has little upsets at times. All your care cannot prevent them. But you can be prepared. Then you can do what any experienced nurse would do—what most physicians would tell you to do—give a few drops of plain Castoria. No sooner does than Baby is soothed; relief is just a matter of moments. Yet you have eased your child without use of a single doubtful drug; Castoria is vegetable. So it's safe to use as often as an infant has any little pain you cannot put away. And it's always ready for the crueler pangs of colic, or constipation, or diarrhea; effective, too, for older children. Twenty-five million bottles were bought last year.

She declares, however, that mental aging is given far too little attention, and physical charm is wasted if not accompanied by an ageless mind. ## MANY ATTEND CORNER-STONE LAYING EXERCISES AT HOME

The keynote of unity between all organizations interested in the welfare of the O. S. and S. O. Home, was expressed in the addresses delivered during the cornerstone-laying for the men's hall, girls' cottage, and the new hospital at the Home, Sunday afternoon.

More than one hundred visitors, beside the local persons interested in the advancement of the Home, as shown in the erection of the three new buildings, attended the ceremonies.

The interest of Ohio Spanish-American War Veterans is clinched in the Home and members are pledged to give their thorough cooperation in the advancement of the institution, Judge Charles F. Shafter, Bucyrus, department commander, declared in his address, the first on the program.

His speech was followed by a brief talk by Dr. B. R. McClellan, Xenia, who expressed his pride in the progress of the Home and the interest of the organizations in its advancement.

Drawing a colorful word picture of the future of the Home, as the result of the new hospital under construction, Dr. A. C. Bachmeyer, dean of the medical college, University of Cincinnati and superintendent of the Cincinnati General Hospital, described his vision of the hospital's object and good results.

The interest of the patriotic organizations of the state is back of the home at all times, the speakers pointed out and each strived to show the need of the public's whole-hearted interest in the institution. Dr. McClellan stressed the need of unity in interest in the Home and the pledging of support for its advancement for the good of the boys and girls cared for there.

The American Legion had charge of the ceremonies at the girls' cottage, and Capt. C. L. Darlington, Xenia, past state commander, gave a short talk. He expressed his pleasure in the work in progress.

CREATING VAST WEALTH

Southern business leaders are almost unanimous in expressing the opinion that the Jones-Reid Flood Control bill and the Deneen-Denison bill will bring increased and permanent prosperity to the southern states. This state of mind is shown by the results of a recent survey.

Governors, mayors, bankers, planters, merchants, railroad presidents and industrial leaders in the Mississippi Valley states—all were asked what influence they believed these bills would have on Southern business. A New Orleans cotton broker declares that "the flood bill destroys the levees-only policy which has long been the curse of the Valley" but also points out that it "does not provide for ultimate stream-flow regulation and for the use for beneficial purposes of now wasted water resources."

A Baton Rouge banker declares that "the benefits to be derived from this improvement of the Mississippi will be due greatly to the reestablishment of confidence of the owners of the lands back of the levees in these states, and the planters who are utilizing such lands; in other words, people who desire to make investments in choice farm lands can do so when the improvements are completed, without the fear of inundation or disaster."

A $25,000,000 increase in land value, due to this flood-control bill, is prophesied by a Tennessee merchant; an advance in bank stocks as well as land values has already taken place in some localities, declares an Arkansas planter; a Kentucky merchant points out that the improvement of the Mississippi will give employment to thousands of men—and thus bring about increased purchasing power in this district.

BOYS AND THRILLS

Misdirected energies are principally to blame for the wrong things done by 58 gangs of boys and girls in New York city, whose doings have been studied by the New York state Baumes commission. These gangs have in many instances taken up stealing, not because of the profit, but because they want adventure.

The question arises, therefore, how to give them some thrills in the right way. They can get them all right from any good athletic sport. Give them a baseball field, or a basketball floor, or a tennis court, and they will not have to take to stealing for adventure. Or set them to saving and saving money, and their job and their bankbook will give them a thrill.

GETTING OVER DELUSIONS

George Mansfield, writing in "The New Age Illustrated," talks about delusions held by intelligent people. Among them he includes such as these: Red-headed people always have quicker tempers; winters were longer and colder when you were a boy; a square jaw is a sign of will power, etc.

The popular beliefs of the community include an incalculable number of such commonly held beliefs, many of which are absurd and contrary to facts. It takes a long time to plant ideas in the public consciousness, and when they once get in there, it takes a long time to get them out. The scientific minded person does not believe an idea because it is handed down to him, or his neighbors tell him so, but he keeps his eyes open to see if it is sustained by his observation.

MANAGING MOMENTS

Lincoln's Gettysburg address was written on the back of an envelope on the train. Lincoln managed his moments. One of the smartest men the writer ever knew in college was a fellow who used to work problems in analytic geometry by utilizing the moments between classes. In the few minutes between classes, while the rest were talking and laughing and stretching in preparation for another session, he sat quietly apart and did problems.

One of the teachers best remembered after the years is one who began teaching on the way from the classroom door to his desk. He kept at it until the bell rang.

NOT SMART TO BE SMART

There are those who make neatly turned phrases for the sake of neatly turned phrases. There are men and women who gain a reputation for cleverness in conversation by constantly working at the job. They sacrifice anything and anybody for the sake of being thought smart and clever. No chance to make a smart remark, a "wise crack," is overlooked. It may hurt somebody, be unjust, uncalculated, and unkind. No matter to them if it is clever. No really big man is ever so unkind and thoughtless as that. Smart remarks are very often not worth the price.

THE LEGION

Men who now compose the American Legion once led the rest of America to a new place and a high place from which thousands of men and women got a new and larger view of duty. We encamped for a season on this high place, but most of us came down later. These young men who led us there have not forgotten the great adventure in idealism, even if the rest of us have. There is no organization in America that more deserving commands our affection and support than the American Legion.

New Yorker

By CLARK KINNAIRD

NEW YORK—Raids on Broadway "night clubs," 95 per cent of which are rowdy houses or barroom-cabarets, used to be futile gestures, for proprietors either opened up at other locations the next evening, or continued blandly to operate in further defiance of the law while attorneys used the injunction power to handcuff the dry forces, or resumed operations at the same old stand after the padlock period was over.

But the most recent campaign against these glorified speakeasies, conducted with determination that Broadway's guild could not beat, has upset the nonchalance of the operators and they are scurrying to cover. Doors of erstwhile gay places now bear such signs as "Closed for alterations," "Moved to new location."

However, closing the night clubs hasn't made the Gay White Way any less gay. The night clubs were never anything but sucker-joints, devoted to the open-faced kipping of loose-spending nonentities desirous of being mistaken for persons of importance, or for the costly edification of tourists who think that notables make whoopee in public.

New York's gayest parties, where stage beauties and millionaires, notables and helleesses give their complexes a romp, aren't held in night clubs or in Greenwich Village, as is popularly supposed by hinterlanders, but in pent-houses atop skyscrapers, on Long Island estates, in Park avenue apartments, or on yachts. What the visitor sees in night clubs running full is simply so many reflections of himself.

Despite her recent and many previous arrests, Texas Guinan, the night club queen, insists that she's a good girl, that she never took a drink in her life, that she wouldn't work in a place in which liquor was sold, and that she's good to her mother. Anyway, she isn't the heartless person she has been pictured to be.

Not long ago an ambitious young man, intent upon impressing some out-of-town friends whom he was showing the town, spread his slender roll of greenbacks along Broadway. Then his guests suggested that the evening and their trip to New York wouldn't be complete without a visit to the Guinan club. The youth didn't know any graceful way to slide out of the situation, and so was dragged into the club with $12 in his pocket. He knew the average check there is around $100.

Inside, he summoned the nerve to ask the "super-hostess" boldly for a moment of her time, explained the situation, and asked, "Can we have five bottles of ginger ale and sit down and watch the customers for a while, for $12?"

Texas, moved by his nerve or his insolence, sat down and signed the check herself. The only quartet that ever got in and out of her club on $12!

I didn't believe it until I saw it myself. Errand and stock boys in the stockrooms of one big department store, covering a vast area, are equipped with roller skates. It was an efficiency man's idea. Other stores are copying it.

Nick the Greek (Nick Forzley), biggest of the race horse plungers is dead, leaving not a penny. The other Nick the Greek, Nicholas Dandolos, all-around gambler, is broke. Both once had more than a million. "Sure things" wiped out their bank rolls.

Nick Dandolos' weakness was craps. He would travel over the country, engaging other professionals at faro, poker and roulette, for any stake, and amass hundreds of thousands; then return to New York and be cleaned by dice tossers. He has been known to bet as much as $40,000 that he'd toss a ten.

Home Remedies for Hand Troubles

It isn't possible, not even in the 30 years I have devoted to beauty work, to try out every preparation that comes my way. And for most of the accompanying formulae I am indebted to women all over the world. Some have been handed down for three and four generations, others come from over the seven seas; still others are my own, the fruits of many years of experiment and labor.

They are all good, some of them a little more complicated than others, many even elemental in their simplicity. The first old standby is olive oil. Of course, I freely admit that there is quite as much against it as there is in its favor. It's greasy, for one thing, so if you use it, rub it first into the palms of your hands, and then dust with powder to catch up the excess oiliness, and rub off with a coarse towel.

Palm oil is another old remedy for redness and chapping, but this must be applied in the same way. I do believe that you feel as I do, that the more modern hand cream is much better, less trouble, and when properly chosen, is never followed by dryness and irritation of the skin, a point high in its favor. However, there are other remedies.

One, which dates back to American pioneer days—is the inspiration of the great grandmother of a very modern young lady who has changed the products to suit the times. It consisted of impregnating a square of old linen or muslin with nut-tallow and wiping her hands off on it after every bit of manual labor the times demanded of her. Her white hands were soft, in the bag with the bran or meal.

and lovely until she was sixty. You can do the same thing and have the same results by using your hand cream and a thin tissue.

Many sensitive hands which angrily resent the frequent use of soap will take most kindly to washing preparations such as pore pastes or beauty grains. You may be modern and buy these already prepared, or try one of the following powders.

Powdered blanched almonds 8 oz.
Cuttlefish bone, powdered .4 oz.
Powdered castile .4 oz.
Powdered orris .2 oz.
Oil of cloves .1-2 dram.
Oil of lavender .1 dram.

Another old, old recipe calls for two ounces of powdered marshmallow root and two ounces of carbonate of soda stirred into 12 ounces of barley meal.

An English formula of undated origin consists of:

Two ounces almond soap dissolved in two ounces lemon juice. When mixed add one ounce each of bitter almonds and glycerine, and a half ounce of potassium carbonate.

A modern substitute for soap, suitable for the finest of skins and simple to obtain, is the following:

Powdered tragacanth .100 grains.
Rose water . . . . .5 drams.
Glycerine . . . . .1-1.2 ounces.
Tincture of benzoin . . . 3 drams.
Orange flower water .5 to 10 drops.

Bran bags and oatmeal bags are other beauty aids of long ago. The bran or meal is bound in a little bag and soaked in the water until it becomes cloudy. A few drops of aromatic vinegar is a welcome addition to this wash. Or a slice of lemon may be bound in the bag with the bran or meal.

Kellygrams

By FRED C. KELLY

I grow vexed at times over the way things are rigged up at every turn to sell me something. When I go to a cafeteria, desserts are invariably the first thing I strike when I start down the little alley that finally ends up in front of a cash register.

Since desserts are usually eaten last, they might logically be bought last. But the cafeteria proprietors know that after one has bought all the substantial he needs, he may decide not to buy any dessert at all. Therefore, they offer desserts first on the counter, and make us buy them before we see what else is available. This is so obviously in the interest of the proprietor, rather than of the customer, that I always feel as if I were being victimized. I wish I could find an eating place where they are clever enough to make me feel that their only motive in life is to do whatever is best for the customer.

The condition is worse in warm weather and it is getting on my nerves."

You should correct your posture, G., for poor posture may bring along a train of other disorders. Did the doctor examine your feet and are they normal, with no degree of fallen arches?

Behind the Scenes in Washington

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON — Numerous letters from subscribers to the Washington newspapers, now that the presidential campaign is on, contain strenuous appeals to the country to turn thumbs down on the G. O. P., on account of the diabolical hash the District of Columbia government has been making out of the capital's looks since the Republicans last came into power.

No doubt most people who don't live here will say this is going it pretty strong—trying to make one single city's good looks the vital issue in a national election.

Well, the fact is, I do not suppose the writers of these letters really mean what they suggest.

At the same time, the Washington situation has to be seen and experienced to be appreciated.

Everybody, I take it, knows theoretically that the capital is not a word to say about its own municipal administration. But I question if many folks realize how it works out in practice.

How would St. Louis, for instance, enjoy being governed by Bangor (Me.), San Diego, Seattle and Miami?

Is it likely that it would be governed thus to its own satisfaction?

Such is Washington's unhappy fix—except that responsibility for Washington's welfare is scattered in a great many more directions than any mere four points of the compass.

Not counting the Washingtonians—who have no more voice in the matter than so many Hottentots—the only people who take any keen personal interests in District of Columbia developments are a rather small group, whose chief aim is to direct them so as to fatten their individual bank accounts.

They are real estate promoters principally.

War-time Washington — previously a good deal of an overgrown village — for obvious reasons increased tremendously in population. The increase continued into the post-war period. It attracted the realtors' attention. They resolved to make the most of it.

Perhaps they are creating a great metropolis. They certainly are creating a hideous one.

Old-fashioned Washington's beauty always lay largely in its glorious trees—in the business as well as in the residential districts. The real estate chaps have no use for trees. A tree, as they view it, is a dead waste of just that much space, which ought to be capitalized. Other cities have none on their main shopping streets—why Washington? Besides, they occupy room where the realtors want to park flivvers.

Native Washingtonians have fought the deforestation campaign tooth and nail for ten years, but with the steady loss of street after street.

The realtors have all the "pull" with the District government. As the present summer draws toward its close, devastated northern France had nothing, as a scene of desolation, on a considerable part of Washington.

The latest scheme evolved by the forces of progress and improvement is to pave the downtown parks and green squares and circles, with brick or asphalt.

They are needed, it seems, to serve as parking places. By the time these boys are through with us we shall have a really fine modern city.

As we understand the anti-Smithites among our Democratic friends, the South will be neither solid nor liquid this year.—Ashville Times.

Living and Loving

By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

Should We Dislike Folks?

Or Try To See Good In Them?

Now in this matter of liking people or not liking them, what should we do? Of course it is impossible to like everyone. Granted. But why be in a state of warfare because of it? You don't like your fellow-citizens. I have mine. Maybe you don't like mine and I don't like yours. They make us yearn to leave things at one another. But maybe if we stopped thinking about one another's peculiarities and tried to find something that we had in common, we might forget that we dislike one another and even come to be friends.

"Dear Mrs. Lee: I am a girl 18. I have one fault. I will not go with a fellow if I do not like him, even if he shows me a wonderful time. The fellows I like, my parents and brother will not let me go with, and the ones I don't like I won't go with, so, lately I have been sitting home. It's so funny, the boys I like and would like to go out with, talk to me, dance with me, but never ask me for a date. I just can't understand it. I go with the older crowd of boys, 20 and up. I don't like the boys of my own age, they're so silly. All they think about is necking. Recently I met a fellow. He took a liking to me and I to him, but he has a girl here and she is very jealous of him. I know he doesn't like her, but he just can't get away from her. He wants to take me out, but I am afraid of his girl's and other people's talking, and my brother won't let me go out with him. Life is so peculiar. I'm so disgusted. Mrs. Lee, I hate to sit at home while my girl friends go out. Please help me. I guess you'll think I'm silly, but please advise me. DOTTIE"

Well, Dottie, why not go with the boys of whom your parents and brother approve, and let them a chance. Maybe you'll like them better than you think. There's an old saying you know, "If you can't have what you like, you must like what you can have." And don't try to take any other girls' bean away, even if you do think he likes you best. It's not sporty and he isn't tied to her, you know. No matter what he says he doesn't HAVE to go with her if he doesn't want to. Make your brother take you out if he's so fussy about your company. You'll have plenty of boy friends in time, but when you are a married woman, you will look back with a great deal of pleasure to the good times you had when you and brother were home. I know I do.

"My Dear Mrs. Lee: Could you advise me on the following: Should a girl almost 15 go out once in awhile with young, respectable fellows? Should father object if mother consents? If so, what should be done? Should mother keep daughter in the house to please father? W."

In my estimation girls of 14 may go out once in awhile with nice boys of whom their parents approve. Father and mother should decide on a policy, and if they disagree, they should compromise.

Peter's Adventure

By MRS. FLORENCE SMITH VINCENT

BETWEEN SKY AND SEA

At this last remark of Mr. Bobolink, Mrs. Bobolink laughed and said in an aside to Peter but so loud others could hear:

"And I said 'what are you talking about, Bob, anyhow? Haven't I been ready since we left the sea?' Come on now. Catch me if you can. Then off I flew."

"But it didn't take me long to fly up to you," cried Bobolink. "And what a sail that was. The air was delightfully cool and the sun bright and warm, so we were neither too hot nor too cold. Below us were the dancing waves, with here and there and everywhere specks of white foam with which the sunbeams played a merry game of tag. Above us soft fleecy white clouds floated lazily across the blue sky. No matter which way we looked everything was beautiful."

On and on we flew. The Great Ball right above us now only it was red no longer but golden, and so bright that it made our eyes blink to look toward it. Once when we tried to we bumped into each other—it's light had made both wife and I quite blind, for a moment. We didn't try it again. It is not pleasant to be flying over the deep water and lose your sight—even for a second. Then the Ball rolled slowly to one side—the opposite side to where it had been before it rose so high—and dropped lower and lower. After a while its rays made a path for us in the water. How pretty it was, all shining and glittery! Little by little the light changed. Now it was golden no longer, but the loveliest color wife and I had ever seen. We argued whether it was pink or yellow or lavender, and at last we decided that the sun had painted the off sky with a little bit of red and blended them so one could not tell where one began and the other ended. At last the Great Ball dropped over the edge of

"NO MATTER WHICH WAY WE LOOKED ALL WAS BEAUTIFUL!"
The earth and the Silver Ball rolled over the shore of the sea. Perhaps, But we knew it new could; we had seen it try to often. At last the Sky Girl lighted his candles, and twinkled at us as much as I say, "Hurry up, little boys, I will light you on your way long as we can, but make haste for when the winds of day blow us out, it will be dark all dreary. The shore of the homeland is near at hand, little birds. Have courage and you will soon be there." Next—"Just Before Dawn."

Reserves Outhit, Bunch Blows For 7 To 4 Victory

MONTE YOUNGS TAKE DEFEAT SUNDAY AT WASHINGTON PARK

Seventeenth Win For Chambliss Team; Have Lost Twice.

ALTHOUGH greatly outhit, the Reserves succeeded in bunching their blows more effectively, and with the invaluable assistance of six enemy errors, defeated the Monte Youngs of Dayton 7 to 4 Sunday afternoon at Washington Park.

Guy McMichael, Reserve pitcher, was hit with considerable freedom—the 23-pointers making eleven blinges—but managed to keep them fairly well scattered. The Reserves garnered only seven hits but these were bunched in the four innings in which runs were scored. Sherman, who started in the box for Dayton, held the Reserves to one hit in the first five rounds, but gradually weakened and voluntarily retired in the eighth inning when the local nine won the game with a three-run rally, based on three hits, including a double and triple.

R. Sanford, Dayton catcher, made three hits, including a double, while B. Fisher, third sacker, connected with a double and a home run, the circuit cut coming in the eighth inning with the bases empty. The smash was a liner that cleared the center field fence. Durnbaugh and Tangeman were the only Reserve players able to solve Sherman's pitching to any great degree. Tangeman hit a single and double and walked once. Durnbaugh contributed a pair of singles.

The fielding features of the game were furnished by C. Sanford, Dayton center fielder. He had a field day with six putouts, all on hard chances and capped it all with a sensational catch of a long fly by Johnson in the ninth. He speared the ball under the center field fence and then turned a somersault over a bench, injuring his leg. Incidentally, casualties were numerous, Empire Kirby and Mike Weller, catcher, also being victims of minor injuries.

Reserves took a temporary lead in the first inning when Johnson walked, stole second and scored on a single by Durnbaugh. Dayton went ahead in the fourth after two were out when successive doubles by E. Eckert and B. Fisher followed by singles by C. Sanford and R. Sanford scored two runs. Hoefler was safe on a fielder's choice but Cyphers tossed out Sherman with the bases loaded for the final out.

The Clothers tallied another run in the sixth when Klee dropped C. Sanford's difficult fly and R. Sanford followed with a double. Sherman singled to right but R. Sanford was nipped at the plate by Johnson's accurate throw home. Reserves got one run back in the last of the sixth on an error by E. Eckert, a single by Tangeman and Barlow's double over third which scored one runner. Three errors and a single by Durnbaugh enabled the Reserves to score two more runs and take the lead again in the seventh. B. Fisher's home run with none on base again tied it up in the eighth. Reserves then proceeded to win out in the eighth on Tangeman's double, a single by Cyphers a first and an out at first. Dayton was retired in one-two three order in the ninth.

The victory was the seventeenth of the season for the Reserves against two defeats. Reserves will meet the Grismer Fuels of Dayton next Sunday on a winner-take-all basis. The winning team gets the entire gate receipts. Reserves divided a double-header with the Grismer team earlier in the season and Sunday's game will be the third and deciding contest.

YOUTHFUL LOU MEYER WINNER OF ALTOONA AUTO RACE CLASSIC

ALTOONA, Pa., Aug. 20.—Lou Meyer, youthful Californian, who first won fame by winning the Indianapolis races Memorial Day, today wore a new crown after winning the 200-mile International speed sweepstakes at Altoona speedway before a holiday crowd of 65,000. Young Meyer, driving a Stutz Special, maintained a pace of 117 miles an hour, covering the distance in 1:42:45.

Bob McDonough, of San Francisco, driving a Flying Cloud, who led Meyer during the early part of the classic, was forced into second money and lost the most generous slice of the $27,000 money when a flat tire catapulted his car into the pit on the 101st lap. McDonough lost nearly two and one-half miles in the spill, but roared ahead of the others to place second in 1:43:43.

Cliff Woodbury, of Chicago, driving for Fred Cmer, placed third in 1:44:55, with Billy Arnold, Philadelphia, fourth, Dave Evans, San Antonio, fifth and Ray Keech, holder of the world's speed record, sixth.

Leon Duray won the preliminary five mile sprint in 2:18 3-10 seconds, while Ralph Hepburn took the ten mile sprint in 4:42 3-10.

YES, SIR! SMITH WEARS THEM

Apostle M. J. Mintern, above, youngest of the Zion church leaders, has been chosen by Wilbur Glenn Voliva, to succeed him as overseer. Voliva has explained that he felt he should name his successor because of "the uncertainty of this frail and transitory life." Voliva is nearing his sixtieth year. The church is in Zion, Ill.

Now the secret's out! Governor Alfred E. Smith, Democratic presidential nominee, wears regular old-fashioned galluses! This sketch gives an idea of how the genial governor looks in suspenders.

To Succeed Voliva

It was written with a hand that had trembled—blurred.
"Dear little Angel: When you get this I will be dead. It's no use. I'm no good, and never will be. This is every cent I have in the world, and I want you to have it. Use it on your voice. What you did have ever seen, and I am doing this because I know that Flavia would want me to if she could come back. I am giving this to Lotus to take to you because, even though you hate me, I know this will be a shock, coming like this, and want her to be with you. Good-bye and God bless you, Angel—Putty."

Lotus put her arms around Janet—wonderingly. She was wide as death, and did not move. The note fluttered from her fingers and Lotus shook her before she spoke.
"Get—the phone book," she snuck into a chair and could scarcely see the pages.
Putty's hotel! She hoped she would be in time to save him. She must find out.
The operator was very sorry, but Mr. Bigelow had met with an accident—yes, he was dead.
For the first time in her life Janet faintly, Lotus Flower caught her when she fell.
When Janet regained consciousness everything seemed to be swimming before her. She had never been so ill in her life—or needed someone quite so badly. Lotus Flower was thoroughly frightened. Almost incoherently, Janet told her what had happened. That "Putty" Bigelow had killed himself, even while she was delirious, and that Lotus did not look at all troubled. She tried to comfort Janet.
"He had man, I hate him. Make Misses Flavia unhappy all time. Make you unhappy. Better off dead."
Janet felt she must have someone with her who would understand. There seemed to be something sinister in the night. Her nerves were on edge and she was shivering as it cold. Ballard, Oh, if she could only have him with her now!
Suddenly she straightened. Why not? She was ill—really ill. She felt as though she could never get up from where she was sitting. Like a little girl she was thoroughly frightened, afraid of the dark. Why should she not have Lotus Flower call the hospital and ask for him? For she did not believe he was really out of town.
Impulsively she gave Lotus instructions and waited—breathless—

READ THIS FIRST:

Janet Mary James, eighteen, has an ambition to go on the stage because her mother, who died the night she was born, had been a famous opera star. In New York Janet meets Ballard Riley, young successful physician, who is known as a woman hater. Ballard dates her up, and at first Janet gets a lot of fun teasing Ballard with her ideas. Later she knows she loves him and she is not so sure of him. Ballard keeps her guessing. Janet is given a small dancing part in Morit Goldstein's latest musical revue. Morit thinks she will make a star. In New York Janet meets Flavia Marlowe, rich and fashionable, who is just beginning to show her age and trying to hide it. Janet detests "Putty" Bigelow, boy friend of Flavia, but he is determined to cause trouble between Janet and Flavia by acting as though he is in love with Janet.

Janet's name and picture is emblazoned all over the front pages of the papers, it seems that her father has renounced her and Morit Goldstein is endeavoring to sign up Parson James for a big revival service at the Garden. Goldstein figures father and daughter, as rival headliners on Broadway, will be great publicity for his new musical show. Lotus Flower, little Japanese servant, tells Janet she has brought a letter from "Putty" Bigelow.

Putty makes a scene, and Flavia, shaken with jealous rage because she thinks Janet is making love to Putty, faints unconscious and later dies.

Ballard and Janet are driving up town one evening when they discover Janet's father, a self-styled preacher, is holding a revival service. They enter, and Daniel James, holds his daughter, Janet, up to ridicule, for being on the stage.

Ballard tells Janet that he loves her. After he gets home he suffers great remorse for having told her. At the stage door that night Janet finds a group of reporters.

ly, while she called the hospital. He gave her the number when Lotus told them it was an important call from an ill friend.
He was on the wire Janet was frantic. What if he would refuse to come to her? She would die. "Tell him something dreadful has happened and that I am ill and need him," Janet said.
Ballard did not wait for further information. A half hour later he was at the door. Pale and wild, he rushed into the room.
"Janet—dear—what is wrong?"
With a glad little cry she fell in his arms and burst into tears of relief. How relieved he looked that she was not hurt. She would never forget the joy in his face—and how miserable he had looked when he came in.
Lotus Flower smiled happily. She knew Janet would be all right. She went into the kitchenette and shut the door.
Ballard was a sympathetic listener. She was so unstrung he knew the only thing to do was to let her tell him all about it. That would relieve her nervous strain. So he held her in his arms and listened. Janet buried her face in his shoulder, self-consciously.
"Ballard—you don't mind my calling. There was no one else. He cut her off with a kiss.
"Honey, I have been a brute. Forgive me. Some time I will explain my actions." He floundered for words.
Her arms tightened around his neck.
"I understand, dear."
In her happiness Janet had almost forgotten about Putty. But suddenly she was reminded of it and tears gathered in her eyes again.
"Oh, Ballard," she asked, suddenly. "Don't I have terrible things happen to me?"
His voice was serious as he looked at her squarely.
"This is no time to say 'I told you so,' Janet, but you know I feel that friends like that will never get you anywhere. As long as you select them from that strata of society you can count on experiencing dramatic incidents with regularity. Keep away from that kind of people."
Janet was on the defensive. She drew away from him.
"But they were kind, good—why, look, even Putty."
"Yes, he had a fleeting spark of decency. I see, but nevertheless, he was famous for his wild escapades. It would have hurt you to have been seen with him. Just another society loafer."
Janet winced.
"Poor Flavia loved him, he could not have been all bad."
"Flavia Marlowe was notorious. You could not possibly have picked out two people more thoroughly unworthy of the friendship of a girl like you," Ballard assured her, not any too kindly.

She looked at him, surprised.
"Ballard, I believe you are hard hearted. How can you say such things when Flavia and Putty are both dead?"
"Because," he told her seriously, "this is the time to impress you with the idea that had companion bring only trouble and sorrow."
She smiled in spite of herself.
"You sound like my father."
"Heaven forbid!" He threw up his hands. "But if there is a place on this beautiful earth that the scum of society seems to be floating around looking for victims, this hole down here is the spot. You should have friends of your own age—nice people, like your self. Don't pick up with people like that."

Janet was not very well pleased, but she knew he was sincere—and perhaps he

The Theater

By C. K.

NEW YORK, Aug. 20.—Film folk invariably have single-track minds and so their only train of thought now has to do with sight-and-sound pictures. (Incidentally most of the producers are dropping such designations as Photophone, Movietone, Vitaphone, Vocafilm, Fotovox, Firnaphone, etc.), in favor of the simple term, sound pictures. But that one subject gives them PLENTY to talk about.

For one thing, Broadway producers are unmistakably indicating that they are not going to sit tight and lose their businesses and let all the profits from talking-movies flow into Hollywood coffers. At least eight producers, including Florenz Ziegfeld, William A. Brady, Lee and Jake Shubert, A. H. Woods, and Arthur Hammerstein are in a combination which has as its purpose the production of talking pictures based on stage successes.

Mary Garden, prima donna and stormy petrel of American opera, who, reports from abroad say, will trip to the altar with Pierre Plessis, French newspaper publisher. Recently Miss Garden underwent a "face-lifting" operation in Paris, but it was performed in her own hotel suite to dodge unwelcome publicity.

The plan the producers have in mind is to continue to produce plays in the regular manner on Broadway, and to film them only for exhibition on the road or for later exhibition in New York. In making the movies there would be no extra expense to the producers except that of the equipment itself, since everything else would be provided for the stage production. Equity, the actors' union, is alarmed at the prospect, as it feels it would mean virtual extinction of the already skeletonized road, which is the training-ground of new blood and the gentle haven of the veterans. The answer of the producers to that complaint is that film actors give only one performance of each piece, and that movies have given

COMEDY TOMMY MONDAY NIGHT HIGH SPOT ON CHAUTAUQUA HERE

The Saturday evening program at Chautauqua was given by the L. E. Gilbert Co., Ellsworth Gilbert again heads the company, which includes his wife, Thelma Gilbert, and Adaline Laws, sopranos; Mildred Macon and Mary Jane Rhea, contraltos; Harold Baumgardner and Myron Taylor, tenors; Carl Dews, baritone, and Ruth Taylor, pianist.

An effective cathedral setting was revealed as the curtain rose on the first part of the evening's program and the gowned chorus in processional sang "Onward Christian Soldiers," this followed by a series of beautiful sacred numbers offered with dignity and solemnity. "Song of the Vagabond," "The Italian Street Song" and the spiritual "Leanin' on the Lord" and many others were sung during the second part of the production. Colonial costumes enhanced the beauty of the last part of the program, which included melodies of the southland and American folk songs, and the executing of the graceful and stately minuet.

Monday afternoon the audience and especially the young people were delighted with the lecture on pigeons, accompanied by a demonstration with a large number of live birds, by Frank H. H. Hollmann, editor of the American Pigeon Journal.

Monday evening the second play of the Chautauqua, "Tommy," a metropolitan comedy success is to be given. Pa and Ma Thurber, Marie, Uncle Dave, Tommy and Bernard are the characters in the play. The play deals with the modern American home and a fine plot and story runs throughout.

On Tuesday, the last day of Chautauqua, Solis Marimba Band.

Xenia Resident So Nervous She Could Not Hold Cup of Coffee—Konjola Brought Almost Immediate Relief

Seems like the seeming wonders accomplished by Konjola will never cease, judging from the reports of recoveries made to the Konjola Man at the Gallaher Drug Store, 33 E. Main St., where he is explaining daily to eager searchers after health this amazingly efficient remedy for troubles of the stomach, liver, kidney and bowels, and for neuritis, rheumatism and extreme nervousness. Among the grateful ones who delight to tell what Konjola has done for them is Mrs. L. M. Stephens, Waynesville, R. F. D. No. 1, near this city. It is a graphic story she tells in her happiness in being relieved of a stomach affliction that caused her untold suffering for many years, and how Konjola banished a most aggravated type of nervousness. To the Konjola Man Mrs. Stephens said:

"Many years of suffering I put through with a badly disordered stomach. The things to eat I wanted most I dared not eat at all, and what little plain food I could take would not digest, with the result that constant pain was with me. This kept up year after year, and though I tried everything supposed to be helpful I got no better. In fact, I became steadily worse, until my nervous system broke down almost completely. Upon rising in the morning I trembled so that I could not hold a cup of coffee. At night, when I retired, my heart pounded so rapidly that I was frightened. My feet and ankles were badly swollen, and my system generally was seriously depleted. I heard about Konjola and what it was doing for victims of chronic indigestion and nervousness, and I decided to see if it would help me. The result was astonishing. No sooner had I taken a few doses than I began to see results. As I continued with the treatment my indigestion became better and better, and my nerves calmer. With the third bottle came complete recovery. My nerves are as steady as steel, and I can eat anything without discomfort. Just think—after years of suffering to be made well again in a few short weeks. Konjola has made a new woman of me, and I consider it a privilege to be able to make this statement for all to read."

Thousands of such statements are in the Konjola files, mute but eloquent tributes from people whom Konjola has transformed from invalidism to a state of health. Konjola is a natural remedy, containing the juices of 22 herbs and leaves, and ten other ingredients, all of acknowledged medicinal value. These ingredients, each with a special mission to perform within the body, all go to work at once. Results from Konjola are not only quick and certain, but lasting. New health is just around the corner; Konjola points the way.

The Konjola Man is at the Gallaher Drug Store, 33 East Main St., where he is meeting the public daily, introducing and explaining the merits of this remedy.

AGED DOCTOR STILL RESORTS TO BUGGY

JERUSALEM, O., Aug. 20.—With a pill case stowed in the rear of his buggy, drawn by "Nig" his faithful old horse, Dr. G. W. Stewart, 81, one of the few remaining "old fashioned country doctors", still makes his way over the hills and dales in summer and winter in the most mountainous section of eastern Ohio.

Dr. Stewart has seen 60 years of doctoring the ills of mankind, and refuses to think for a moment of retiring. He has been family physician to three generations, and has aided the sick in delivering 900 babies to proud parents.

Dr. Stewart says he feels as young as ever. "I smoke tobacco, but boys and girls should not use cigarettes to excess," he stated. "Sleep at least eight hours every day and eat three excellent meals every day. Don't worry, work hard, and observe the Golden Rule—that's the rule for health, happiness and long life."
